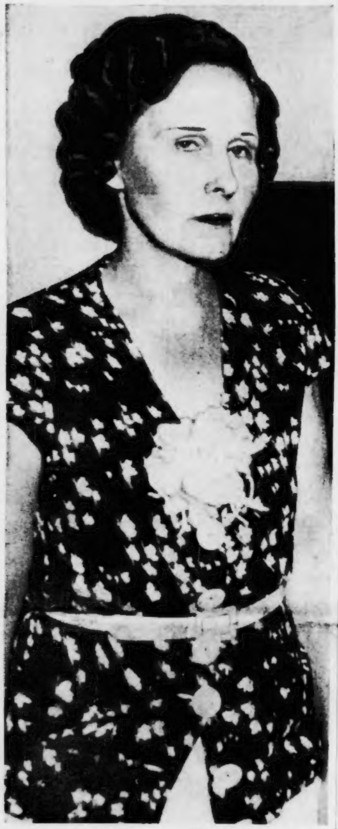
BRITISH ENVOY SHOT BY JAP FLIER



Boston Evening American Photo.

Just outside the Waltham police court this morning this picture of Mrs. Alice Noone, of Eaton street, Allston, was taken. A few minutes later she was ordered held under $25,000, double surety, as a material witness in connection with the investigation into the death of Patrolman Henry Bell of Newton.

AMBASSADOR, HIT BY FLIER, NEAR DEATH

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 26 (AP)—The British government announced tonight it was preparing to deal "appropriately" with the Japanese government on the wounding by Japanese fliers of British Ambassador Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen. Complete reports of the affair were taken before King George VI.

By JAMES A. MILLS

Shanghai, Aug. 26 (AP)—International complications of the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war increased ominously today as a Japanese warplane shot and seriously wounded the British ambassador to China, and the Japanese navy threatened to include foreign shipping in its blockade of China's coasts.

Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, the British envoy, was shot while motoring from Nanking to Shanghai.

The ambassador's party was traveling in two motorcars, both flying large Union Jacks.

Fifty miles from Shanghai, two Japanese planes swooped down. The first sprayed the two cars with machine gun bullets. The second dropped bombs after the cars had stopped.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. A. Lovat-Fraser, military attache, was knocked unconscious by a bomb explosion when he alighted from his car, but was not wounded.

ENVOY HIT TWICE

The ambassador was hit at least twice, in the left side and stomach. An official British statement said

Date Set For Rail Strike

Cleveland, Aug. 26 (AP)—A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced today that committees representing five railway brotherhoods had authorized a strike for Sept. 6 to support demands for a general 20 per cent wage increase.

Whitney said the committees, carrying on negotiations at Chicago, set 6 a. m. of September 6 as the time for members of the brotherhoods to begin leaving their jobs.

The organizations involved, he added, are the Trainmen, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineman and Firemen, the Switchmen's Union of North America and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The membership of the groups totals approximately 250,000 men, Whitney said. The wage increase demand was turned down yesterday by the railroads following conferences in Chicago.

The nation is to be divided into four zones, Whitney added, with each walking out on a different day—the strike to become entirely effective by Sept. 9.

Details as to the zone boundaries, he said, are to be worked out today. Broadly, they would be the eastern, northwestern, southwestern and southern sections.

Federal mediation, which may yet be requested by either side in the dispute, would automatically postpone the strike for 30 days.

LOUIS, FARR FIGHT OFF TO MONDAY

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—The heavyweight championship fight between Joe Louis and Tommy Farr, scheduled for tonight, was postponed until Monday night because of rain.

The postponement was announced by Promoter Mike Jacobs after the rival fighters weighed in. The Welsh challenger had a nine-pound advantage on the scales, weighing 207 to 198 for Louis.

A drizzling rain, with no signs of letup by tonight or encouraging reports as to tomorrow's weather, prompted Jacobs to defer the match.

Another factor, presumably, was that the advance ticket sale has been disappointing.

Farr and Louis were not given the usual physical examination. They had stripped within a few feet of each other, without exchanging a word. As Louis stepped off the scales, he stuck out his hand and said to the challenger:

"How are you?"

Farr replied:

"Very good."

That was the extent of their conversation.

SPIRITS IN THE DARK

Unseen Hand Pens Notes for Lake

AUSTEN LAKE

Spirits in the dark! A village of strange voices, of eerie sounds and ghostly trumpetings.

Austen Lake, Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser staff writer, continues his story of Lily Dale, N. Y., where spiritualistic mediums of all classes gather each summer. Today he tells of P. O. L. A. Keeler, and a slate-writing seance.

Mr. Lake's gripping articles, which started in last Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser, will continue tomorrow.

Lily Dale, N. Y.—Most curious of the regiment of mystics in Lily Dale is a white-mustachioed, doddering elder of 82 years—Mr. P. O. L. A. Keeler, the slate-writing medium.

Actually Mr. Keeler does not effect writing on slates. His writing used to come that way, little gray scrawls that rubbed off readily. But his clients

HOLD WOMAN AS WITNESS IN KILLING

Developments today in New England's greatest manhunt in years, for killer of Patrolman Henry G. Bell of Newton, were:

Mrs. Alice Noone and Edward J. Black, reputed friends of the hunted James R. Swartz, held in heavy bail, she as material witness, he as alleged accessory.

Swartz, alias Edward Simpson, named for first time in official writ as alleged murderer.

Houses, camps in Randolph, Cochituate and other places raided, search extended through New England and New York.

Preparations reported to demand reduction of bail of Frances Frada, Cambridge girl, held as alleged accessory and material witness.

Mrs. Alice Noone, 36, of Eaton street, Allston, well-dressed and attractive, with titian hair done up in tight little curls, was held in $25,000 bail double surety, today, as a material witness in the murder of Patrolman Henry G. Bell of Newton.

Named by police as a friend of James R. Swartz, alias Edward Simpson—the slayer-suspect for whom heavily-armed officers are searching in six states—Mrs. Noone is the second woman held in the case.

In the same Waltham district courtroom, where she was held, Swartz's friend, Edward J. Black, pleaded not guilty to being accessory after the murder, and was held in $50,000 double surety on that charge and as a material witness.

FATHER OF 6 CHILDREN

In the complaint against Black, Swartz was named for the first time in any official document as the alleged murderer.

Black, father of six children and living in Cambridge street, Allston,

VATICAN TO SEE FRANCO ENVOY

Vatican City, Aug. 26 (AP)—The Holy See will concede "de facto recognition" tomorrow to the Spanish insurgents, led by Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, is scheduled then to accept the credentials of Pablo de Churruca, Marquis of Aycenena, as the Spanish insurgents' charge d'affaires.

There still was no indication, however, that the Vatican formally would exchange representatives with the insurgent regime, as Salamanca dispatches reported earlier this month.

Still making a gallant fight for her life, eight-year-old Sally Hurley, daughter of the governor, was reported "slightly improved" today.

The cheerful little patient had a brief rally Monday, but it was followed by a relapse.

Wire Kisses Face Ban In N. Y.

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—It looks like the end of kisses by telegraph.

A waggish New Yorker telegraphed a birthday kiss Tuesday to a friend vacationing at Atlantic City. James McGuigan, 17, who delivered it for "the honor of the service," received a dime tip from the surprised recipient.

But Mrs. Katharine Bleecker Meigs, director of the telegraph company's personal service bureau, indicated today no more kiss orders would be accepted.

"Our messengers are such young boys, it might lead to all sorts of difficulties," she said.

Cardinal Hayes Leaves Hospital

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—Patrick Cardinal Hayes left St. Vincent's Hospital today, after spending 16 days recuperating from an attack of indigestion.

Midget Couple Parents Of 5¾ Pound Child

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 26 (INS)—Eighty-pound Frank Delfino drew himself up to his full height of four feet today, grinned, threw out his chest, and said:

"We're going to name her Ruth Frances Marie. As soon as she's big enough, we're going to make a trouper out of her, just like us."

He stood on tiptoes better to see his first born, a baby girl, weighing five pounds 12 ounces.

The infant and Mrs. Delfino, who is three feet, ten inches tall and weighs 67 pounds, are well, although a Caesarian operation was necessary.

The Delfinos are midget entertainers. They met at the Chicago World's Fair, where Frank played the violin at one concession while Mrs. Delfino, then Sadie Williams, danced at the midget village. Shortly after the exposition closed, they were married here.

Eager to visit the hospital and see the baby was Mrs. Fremont Leslie, herself a midget and close friend of the Delfinos. Mrs. Leslie also is 3 feet 10 inches tall, but is wed to a six-footer, and is mother of a seven-year-old girl who now stands four feet.

Mrs. Noone Held as Murder Witness

was accused of harboring or assisting Swartz to escape.

Mumbling in the prisoners' dock, while Mrs. Noone was being arraigned outside the dock, Black kept repeating:

"What did I do? What did I do? Why are they holding me?"

He tried to talk with Mrs. Noone through the grillwork, but was shut off as Judge P. Sarsfield Cunniff asked the woman if she wished to say anything.

"No," she said.

The arraignments took place in Waltham court, with Watertown police in charge of the cases, because the shooting of Patrolman Bell, and the wounding of Motorcycle Officer Lawrence Murphy, both Newton officers, took place over the Watertown line.

CROWD JAMS COURT

A huge crowd gathered and jammed into the courtroom as word spread that the two alleged friends of Swartz were being taken there.

Black was arraigned first. Although well-dressed in a gray suit, with white shirt and blue tie, he was unkempt and unshaven.

Then Mrs. Noone was brought in. She was wearing a blue tunic blouse with white figures and a white pompom at the neckline, a white leather belt, white skirt and blue shoes.

She was hatless and stood, apparently unperturbed, beside the Watertown police matron, Mrs. Bridget Murphy, as she was held for a hearing Sept. 7 and soon afterward taken away to East Cambridge jail.

Mrs. Noone, mother of two children, is a waitress in a restaurant in Cambridge street, Allston.

Black, who stood for arraignment with folded arms and made his not guilty plea in a loud, strong voice, appeared upset afterwards. Besides trying to talk with Mrs. Noone, he appeared to be trying to explain something to another prisoner in the dock.

TELLS OF SWARTZ

At a lineup at Boston police headquarters, this morning, he told how Swartz spent considerable time at his home after his friend escaped from Charles street jail last April, said Swartz always carried a gun poked down under his trouser belt and declared the suspect used a stolen car on a trip to New York.

Black has repeatedly denied, under questioning of Boston and Newton police and District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County, that he has seen or heard from Swartz since the murder.

Swartz abandoned his getaway car, according to police, a short distance from Black's home.

Frances Frada, 17-year-old Cambridge girl, who says Swartz "picked her up" for a ride on the night of the murder, is the other woman held as a material witness in the slaying.

Frances is also held as an alleged accessory before an armed assault.

The quarrel between District Attorney Bishop and state police appeared to have been settled, at least for a time, as Captain John F. Stokes, state detective commander, moved in with a corps of investigators to work out of the district attorney's office.

Reports had been in circulation that Bishop, after long questioning of the Frada girl yesterday, had decided she was innocent and would support a request for a reduction in her $50,000 (double surety) bail.

But he said today he did not care to say at present how he felt and that he would not recommend that her bail be lowered.

The Cambridge girl is now being held in East Cambridge jail.

RAIDS CONTINUE

Raids of farmhouses and camps, in the search of Swartz, continued today.

State Police Sergeant Edward J. McGuinness and Troopers Arthur McCabe, Herbert Burglund and Francis W. Hennigan, working out of the Framingham barracks, raided a farm in Randolph with Police Chief McDonald of that town. Nothing was found.

Chicopee police reported that Frank Bojgeier, a storekeeper, reported a customer answering Swartz' description who purchased a loaf of bread and acted nervously. Swartz is believed to be wounded and the store man said his customer limped.

Vacant camps in Cochituate were searched by State Tropers Sumner Mathes and George Spurr, with Police Chief Craig, on request of the district attorney.

The search spread to New York today when police discovered the scribbled name of a Garden City, L. I., woman under the rear seat of the gray car allegedly used by Swartz the night of the killing.

Following their belief that the suspected killer and bad man is an easy mark for women, police asked New York authorities to arrest the woman on the possibility that she may be harboring the fugitive or know his whereabouts.

Garden City is about 40 miles from New York. Police found also a notation about Jones Beach, public beach near New York City, to which he may have fled.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bishop told the press:

"As a result of the investigation of the crime since it happened and more particularly in the last 72 hours, the authorities are satisfied Swartz murdered Officer Henry Bell of Newton and wounded Lawrence Murphy.

"It is my intention to present the evidence before a special session of the Middlesex grand jury on Monday next."

Police made extensive use of the dragnet system, systematically combing sections of Brighton, Allston and Cambridge and bringing to headquarters anyone who might have had the slightest connection with the case.

Boston police detectives questioned scores of persons throughout the West End today where, it was learned, they received information about reputed number pool connections of Schwartz.

This inquisition caused several number pool operators and lawbreakers of other kinds to quit the city "until the storm blows over," according to reports.

Among those taken to Bishop's office for questioning this afternoon was a barber, said to have occupied a cell at Charles street jail with Swartz, prior to the latter's jail break. Sergeants James Crowley and Patrick Flannery, with Detective William Connell of Boston police headquarters, picked up this man, whose home is in East Boston.

It was disclosed today that a belief persists among some of the officers working on the case that the slayer may walk into some police station and give himself up, fearing sudden death if he is found in some hideout.

Here is Edward J. Black (right) who, in fear of death at the hands of James R. Swartz, surrendered himself to the law. He is shown with Sergeant Joseph Maguire, of Brighton police. Black supplied addresses of locations often frequented by Swartz, later raided by the police without success.

Nashua, N. H., Tax Rate Up 40 Cents

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 26 (AP)—The board of assessors today fixed the 1937 tax rate at $35.20, an increase of 40 cents over 1936. The increase, city officials said, was due to a restoration of salary deductions, in effect since 1932.

Pair Held in $2000 On Dope Charges

Although William Criquit, alias Crego, was his own counsel and cross-examined Federal Narcotic Agent Edward A. Murphy in Federal Court today, Criquit finally was held in $2000 for the grand jury as an alleged opium seller.

Held also, in the same bonds, was Frank Igoe, alias "The Hype."

The were arrested in the South End by Police Sergeant Frank Sliney and Special Officer Daniel Curran of the narcotic squad.

Both women have been released on their personal recognizance. They previously pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Hawkridge is president of the Birth Control League of Massachusetts while Mrs. Davis is educational director.

TELLS FEELINGS IN OWN STORY

Girl's Sorrow All for Others

FRANCES W. FRADA
Grieves for Worried Kin

REGRETS PAIN TO FRIENDS

EXCLUSIVE!

By FRANCES W. FRADA

(Copyright, 1937, by the Boston Evening American)

(This is the fourth instalment of Frances Frada's own story as edited by James F. McEnany and Countessa Wood of the Boston Evening American Staff, the reporters who obtained the first exclusive interviews with the girl in her cell in the Newton police station early Monday.)

I feel sorry for Danny Mazzola.

I should feel sorry for myself, I guess, but now it is Danny and the others—my mother and brothers and his family—for whom I am grieving. It is I who have brought them all this trouble and worry.

I must have been born under an unlucky star. Things have always happened to me—unlucky things. Before this, however, it was mostly myself who suffered and it was usually physical pain I felt—when I underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis, for instance, or when I was hurt in an automobile accident.

The spiritual pain that I now feel is much worse, let me tell you. The anguish that I have caused my loved ones to suffer I would gladly exchange for any misfortune of the past.

SILVER LINING

But there has been a silver lining. Twice a week for the last year and a half I have been seeing Danny, and with him I could always find happiness.

Only last Thursday Danny took me to the movies in Cambridge. We were so happy together!

On Friday Danny came to my home. We sat and talked a long time.

Saturday was another hot day. In the early afternoon I went out to call him from a phone booth. All I heard was a busy signal, a little buzz that was to change my whole life. The heat was terrific in that phone booth, and I did not wait any longer. Instead I went to the house of my girl chum nearby.

WALKED TO FATE

I knew that I would see him Sunday. He would probably take me to the movies again and we would have another pleasant evening. And so, I did not mind too much, at the time, that I could not reach him.

My chum and I spent part of Saturday afternoon singing popular songs from a song sheet. All the pretty songs made me think of Danny. It was almost as though he were with me in the room.

At nine o'clock that night I left the home of my friend. As I stepped outside the door, I was walking unknowingly into a horrible fate.

This horrible fate has placed me in jail, and no one seems to know when they will set me free. Maybe everything will be cleared up before Danny's birthday.

QUITS DREAMING

I used to dream of myself as Danny's wife. It was so nice to imagine him as my dream husband and the man who would some day be really married to me.

Why isn't life like our dreams?

To me the whole thing is a mystery, and I no longer know what to dream. If I dream that I will be freed and that things will be the same between Danny and me, maybe I am expecting too much.

So I am not dreaming any more. I am facing everything as it is, and if my unlucky star still follows me, at least I know that in this instance I am innocent.

Black Tells of Swartz

GIRLS, TRIPS, CARS INCLUDED IN LINEUP STORY

Girls, trips to New York and Providence, stolen cars—

These figured prominently in a recital of the alleged activities of James R. Swartz, slayer suspect, given by his pal, Edward J. Black, today.

Under a barrage of questions in the lineup room at Boston police headquarters, Black told of his association with Swartz.

Their association began when they attended the same Sunday school in Roxbury, he said.

"VISITED BLACK"

But the police were more interested in events between the time of Swartz' escape from jail, last April, and the murder of Patrolman Henry Bell of Newton, early last Sunday morning.

Swartz, according to Black, visited him about 25 times in that period and eight or ten times slept at his house on Cambridge street, Allston.

"Didn't you go to New York with him?" Black was asked.

"Yes," said Black, standing in the spotlight on the lineup stage, while detectives sized him up from the darkened room.

"Well, what for?"

"Because Swartz found me drinking with a gang in an Allston cafe and made me get out and get into his car. He asked me if I wanted to take a trip.

"IN NEW YORK 4 DAYS"

"I said yes and he asked if I wanted to get a girl. So I phoned ——, who is separated from her husband and whose children were at the beach.

"We were in New York three or four days, at the Jones Beach Hotel on Long Island. We came back to Boston about three weeks ago."

Asked if that was the only trip to New York with Swartz, he said there had been an earlier one, about ten weeks ago.

"Who went with you?"

"I took my daughter and Swartz had a girl named Edna with him."

"Do you know a girl named Viola in connection with Swartz?"

"GIVEN CASH BY SWARTZ"

He told the location of Viola's home, however.

"Did Swartz ever give you any money?"

"Sometimes $5 or $6 or maybe $10," said Black. "He would ask me how I was fixed and he would give me some. The amount depended on how he felt."

Black said he had been out of work for two months, but had received $125 or $130 from the business agent of his union and had stretched this by postponing payment of his rent.

"You knew Swartz had escaped from Charles street jail?" he was asked.

"Yes."

"And you harbored and fed him?"

"Yes. He pushed himself in and I was afraid to report him. I was afraid they would put the finger on me."

"SAW HIM LAST WEEK"

He denied having seen or heard anything from Swartz since the murder.

"I last saw him one day last week," said Black. "He came in and wanted me to go swimming with him at Silver Beach or Newport.

"I didn't get up. The same morning I told him not to take my wife and kids out riding any more. I was getting afraid of the police and that they would put the finger on me as a stool pigeon."

Black told of a trip to South Boston with Swartz who, he said, gave a man $200 for bail.

DESCRIBES CARS

He described several cars which Swartz drove and at first declared he understood these were owned by friends of the slayer-suspect, but later said the trip to Jones beach was in a stolen car.

"Did Swartz drive you to Providence in the murder car?" he was asked.

"No, that was not the car," he said. "But he drove me to an auto camp once in a gray car, and I think that was the car you mean."

In asking about the trip to Providence, police were touching upon the spectacular bank robbery in that city several weeks ago.

Black said Swartz parked on Atwells avenue in that city and went into a place to see a friend, but did not see him. On the way home he said they stopped at a farmhouse and also at a clothing store in North Attleboro.

BOUGHT SUIT

It was there, according to Black, that Swartz bought a suit, the coat of which, police say, was found in a car the alleged Newton slayer used, then abandoned near Black's home, in fleeing from the murder scene.

"Did you know Swartz carried a gun?" Black was asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"Where?"

"In his trousers' belt."

"What kind of a gun, an automatic?"

"CARRIED REVOLVER"

"No, a black revolver. I told him he was foolish to carry it. I saw it every time he opened his coat."

"What did he carry it for?"

"I don't know, unless to fight off anybody who came to take him."

"You were seen at Nantasket with Swartz; how about it?"

"No, I never went to Nantasket with him."

"Ever been in any holdup with him?"

"Never."

"What? Not even as driver?"

"No, sir."

Mistinguett Locks Admirer in Boudoir

FRENCH STAR SPURNS LOVE

Paris, Aug. 26 (AP)—Mistinguett, slim-limbed star of the revue stage, repulsed an impetuous but threatening admirer today by locking him in her boudoir.

The intruder, a 30-year-old Rouen artist, was detained for investigation.

He burst into the apartment, she told police, declared his love for her and threatened to kill her if she spurned him.

Gendarmes said they found a revolver on him.

Famous for her "million-dollar legs"—the most publicized in the world since she insured them for that amount some years ago—Mistinguett visited this country last January.

She visited Hollywood at the time, but denied in no uncertain terms that she intended to go into the movies.

CHEVALIER PARTNER

"I come merely to see ze sights," she said.

Before the month was over she sailed for France.

She achieved fame in French music halls by singing Apache songs.

From the music halls she went to the legitimate stage. At one time Maurice Chevalier, French star, was her dancing partner.

What remains somewhat of a "mystery" is Mistinguett's age. In 1929 she was reported as being 60, but last January before leaving for France she told reporters:

"I'm no chicken, but I'm not as old as they've reported me here. I'm 49. In many places they said I was 60.

"And in San Francisco they said I was 70, but looked 35. I don't like San Fran 'sco."

YAWNS FOR BEAUTY

She has been the idol of many a young girl throughout the world, and to them she has given such advice.

"If you want to be beautiful, girls, if you want to stay young, yawn. I've done it by yawning. Yawning is the greatest beauty treatment ever known."

In 1923 she went on a tour of the United States and was presented to President Coolidge.

For many years she was the chief attraction at the noted Casino de Paris in Paris.

MISTINGUETTE

Lawrence Mills To Vote on CIO

Balloting to determine whether the Committee for Industrial Organization's textile affiliate shall be the sole collective bargaining agent for 18,000 employes in the Wood, Ayer and Shawsheen mills in Lawrence will be held in three weeks, Anthony Valente, sub-regional director for the TWOC, declared today.

His statement followed an announcement in New York by Sidney Hillman, committee chairman, that the American Woolen Company officials had agreed to a National Labor Relations Board election. Elections in 23 other plants operated by the American Woolen Company in New England, New York and Kentucky will follow, Hillman's statement said.

Wire From Missing Man Deepens Boat Mystery

Mystery surrounding the vanishing of John G. Lowe, reported missing when the steamer New York docked here yesterday, deepened today through receipt of a telegram by his housekeeper in Essex, Ct.

The telegram, received by Mrs. Ada Pollard from New York, was signed with Lowe's name, was sent collect and said:

"Delayed. May wire from Boston."

All other telegrams from him previously had been paid at the source, according to Mrs. Pollard, who said the retired Dayton, Ohio, manufacturer had taken the Essex house early in the summer and had lived there and at 116 East 86th street, New York, since.

With the opening of two sealed and stamped letters, police hoped today for a clue to the vanishing.

Police said the letters, together with $214 in cash and $1400 in travel checks, were found in a stateroom registered in Lowe's name.

Police sought permission from the post office department to open the letters and pending receipt of this authority the officers said they were "marking time."

Stork Brings Five To 'Flossie' in Three States

Springfield, Aug. 26 (AP)—"Flossie," a white Spitz, is mighty proud of her "tri-state" puppies.

There's "Maine," "New Hampshire," and "Massachusetts."

While driving down from Skowhegan, Me., with her master, Harold Wisner, "Flossie" gave birth to one tiny, black puppy just about in the center of Kittery, Me.

Surprised that the blessed event occurred so soon, Wisner made "Flossie" as comfortable as possible and rolled on toward the Berkshires.

South of Portsmouth, N. H., "Flossie" whined.

There was another pup.

As Wisner drove across the Massachusetts line, three more appeared.

Fare Evaders Fined

Judge Adlow of municipal court today imposed fines of one or two dollars each on five persons who pleaded guilty to evasion of fare by the misuse of transfer.

CAPITAL Egg Battle BOILS

URGE CONGRESS 'PASS LAW'

Washington, Aug. 26 (INS)—The nation's other problems were laid aside in Senate hallways today as a battle raged over a pair of three-minute eggs.

Senators who have built their political reputations on the slogan "The public shall be served" entered into the contest with spirit.

They searched files for a precedent which will give common patrons of the Senate office building restaurant soft-boiled eggs at any hour of the day—just like the senators.

Bland and dignified Senator Ashurst (D.) of Arizona, chairman of the judiciary committee, was advised of the restaurant rule that permits round-the-clock soft-boiled egg service only to senators.

OUGHT TO BE A LAW

He immediately suggested "there ought to be a law."

Then, showing his particular brand of Western hospitality, Ashurst added:

"By all means, the public should have their eggs any way they want them and at any hour of the day. We are the servants of the people, and it is our duty to see that their eggs are prepared to their liking while they are our guests."

Other Senators registered similar opinions and suggested the problem be placed high in the legislative Calendar at the next session of Congress.

It all came about when an unsuspecting reporter dropped into the restaurant and called for an order of three-minute eggs at high noon.

"I'm sorry,' said the waitress, "but we are only allowed to serve Senators soft-boiled eggs in the main dining room after the breakfast hour. We can give you fried or poached eggs."

CONGRESS MAY ACT

The mystified reporter bellowed his distaste for the rule. The head waiter came running over. She explained that the cook always hates to boil eggs during the luncheon hour. They clutter up the range so.

The indignant reporter strode to the phone and had a few fiery words with the restaurant manager. The manager sympathized with the complainant, waived the rules, and authorized the eggs.

But later, at the request of the manager, the reporter set out to have the rule of long standing repealed. And from all appearances it will be repealed at the next session of Congress, the dignity of the Senate notwithstanding.

Lineman Shocked By Wire in Tree

Charles Schumann, 42, an Edison lineman, of Curtis street, Somerville, was severely shocked today when his foot came in contact with a live wire as he worked in a tree on Grafton street, Arlington, according to police.

Helped down by other workmen, Schumann was taken to Symmes Hospital, where it was said he had not been burned, but was suffering from shock.

Count, Bride Part

EX-THRONE HEIR FACES DIVORCE

COUNTESS OF COVADONGA

Havana, Aug. 26 (INS)—The Count of Covadonga, once heir to the Spanish throne, and his attractive Cuban bride, the former Marta Rocafort, have parted, and the Countess may sue for divorce, it was learned today.

The Count left the home of his father-in-law, Dr. Blas Rocafort, where he has lived since his marriage, and moved to a hotel.

The marital rift was confirmed by Dr. Rocafort, but he declined to reveal the reasons for it, expressing the hope that a reconciliation could be effected.

The Count declined to make any statement.

"He has no information as to what the Countess is planning," his English secretary said.

HELEN WILLS MOODY RAY McGUIGAN

Helen Wills Moody, who gained fame as America's No. 1 woman tennis player, isn't on "the fence" any more—for just a few days ago she was granted a divorce from Frederick S. Moody, Jr. However, while Helen was in the Nevada colony, putting in enough hours to be a legal resident for divorce purposes, she was often seen chatting with cowboy Ray "Mac" McGuigan. The picture was made at Helenbrook, Nevada, near the ranch of handsome McGuigan.

Fish-Catching Dog Has Own System For Snack Time

Dover, N. H., Aug. 26 (AP)—When Naumkeag Sergeant, prize-winning English setter owned by Ralph N. Davis, feels the pangs of hunger he doesn't whine to be fed.

The Sergeant, Davis says, trots off to North River pond, catches a perch or two and appeases his hunger.

Davis says he has seen the dog stand motionless for hours in shallow water waiting for a "strike." When a fish passes, the Sergeant dives and comes up with the fish in his teeth.

SPAIN REBELS NOW OCCUPY SANTANDER

Bilbao, Spain, Aug. 26 (INS)—With a flourish of trumpets, victorious Spanish Insurgent troops today ceremonially occupied the city of Santander, until yesterday the last Loyalist stronghold on the Bay of Biscay.

Led by General Jose Davila, whose offensive cracked the defenses of Santander after weeks of effort, the Rebels marched into the city and planted the Nationalist flag in the municipal square.

Bands of straggling Loyalists staged a final, but unsuccessful attempt to stem the Insurgent advance, but merely delayed the final occupation for a few hours.

London, Aug. 26 (AP)—Stung by what the London Times called "piracy" in the Mediterranean, the British government today threatened Spanish Insurgents with reprisals.

Through its ambassador, Sir Henry G. Chilton, at Hendaye, a blunt protest was transmitted to Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, sternly warning against repetition of attacks on British ships.

10 Seized in Plot To Kill U. S. Judge

Ponce, Puerto Rico, Aug. 26 (AP)—Ten persons were arrested today in connection with a plot against the life of United States District Judge Robert A. Cooper.

Judge Cooper was fired upon last June 8 by a group protesting against his sentencing of eight nationalists on conviction of conspiring to overthrow the government of the United States by force. He was not injured.

Part of Ship Crew Strike on Shore

Fall River, Aug. 26—The oil Tanker Abshire of Port Arthur, Texas, was at sea today after leaving port here a day late with a short-handed crew because of labor trouble.

The National Maritime Union called a strike on the ship when it was refused permission to allow a delegate aboard. The vessel sailed after peace negotiations failed, with part of the crew ashore.

JAPAN AIRMEN WOUND BRITISH AMBASSADOR

there was no doubt the planes that attacked him were Japanese.

He was rushed to the country hospital in Shanghai's International Settlement, where surgeons found a bullet had broken his back but left the spinal cord intact.

MAY NOT RECOVER

They said his condition was exceedingly critical and that he might not recover.

Vice-Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, commanding Japanese naval forces at Shanghai, ordered an investigation of the shooting of the ambassador and informed Sir Charles Little, commander of the British China squadron of this action.

The ambassador rallied somewhat after a blood transfusion in which the donor was H. A. Thomson, of Mountain View, Cal., pharmacist's mate, third class, United States Navy, attached to the hospital of the Fourth Regiment of marines.

Sir Hughe's chauffeur said the attacking plane flew so low the Japanese ensign on its wings was clearly visible, and the flier must have been able to see the British flags.

As soon as it was evident that the planes were chasing the automobiles, the party stopped. Sir Hughe was struck as he emerged from his car and stepped into a machine gun blast.

AMERICAN ESCAPES

This grave international complication was coupled with narrow escapes for three Americans, two of them during a fierce Japanese air raid on the million dollar American-owned Poplar Groves dairy farms near Shanghai.

Chinese and foreign diplomatic circles in Nanking received news of the ambassador's shooting with expressions of dismay. They understood Sir Hughe was on his way to Shanghai to discuss with Sigeru Kawagoe, Japanese ambassador, possibilities of ending the Shanghaid hostilities by diplomatic agreements.

JAPANESE REGRETS

British embassy attaches said the ambassador also was anxious to survey arrangements for evacuating British nationals from Shanghai to Hongkong.

High Japanese officials were quick to express their sorrow. Katsubo Okumura secretary of the Japanese embassy, called at the hospital on behalf of the Japanese ambassador. Vice-Admiral Tadao Honda, naval attache of the embassy, called to express the navy's regrets.

Messages of condolence also came from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese government, and other Chinese officials.

On the battlefronts around Shanghai Chinese defenders, meanwhile, had fallen back on a broad front, while the Japanese army had established a firm foothold on the Yangtze coast, north of Shanghai, for the landing of divisions from the homeland for extended operations to drive the Chinese from the vicinity of Shanghai.

THREAT TO FOREIGN SHIPS

A spokesman for the Japanese navy declared that "foreign shipping along the China coast may be halted by Japanese warships patrolling the area."

(In Tokyo Premier Fumimaro Konoye declared Japan considered British and American efforts to halt the fighting in the Shanghai area as of little importance.)

BRITISH OFFICIALS GRAVE

British officials took an exceedingly grave view of the attack on the ambassador and immediately lodged a strong protest with the Japanese government.

Despite the fact the automobile carried a large British flag the Japanese planes dived low and peppered the occupants with machine gun bullets about 50 miles from Shanghai.

Lovat-Fraser immediately jumped out of the car to see the reason for the atack and one of the Japanese planes loosed a bomb which missed the wounded ambassador but knocked Lovat-Fraser senseless.

FLYINNG U. S. FLAG

J. B. Powell, Chicago Tribune correspondent, was jolted but uninjured when Japanese shell splinters smashed into his automobile, which was flying the American flag.

J. H. McKinnon of Houston, Tex. manager of the large American-owned Poplar Groves Dairy Farms on the outskirts of Shanghai saved his life by feigning death under a hail of Japanese aerial bombs and machine gun fire.

A squadron of Japanese warplanes attacked the farms for the second time within a week, almost annihilating the dairy's herd of 400 pedigreed American cattle.

Fleeing the bombing, McKinnon leaped into a crater left from the first Japanese air raid. He lay motionless as though dead until the Japanese planes, which had dived to less than 500 feet above him, flew off.

TARGET FOR JAPANESE

McKinnon protested to American consular authorities against the repeated Japanese bombardments.

He and American owners of the property were unable to explain why the farm, over which large American flags are flying, should be a target for the Japanese.

They surmised that Japanese aviation officers might have mistaken the farm's machinery, including huge cement mixers, for Chinese gun emplacements.

A Japanese embassy spokesman, asked concerning reparation, replied:

"We have taken great pains to respect foreign property. So far no American property has been damaged.

"The Japanese army will continue this careful attitude."

Referring by name to United States Secretary of State Hull and his expressed wish that both China and Japan cease fighting, and to the British proposal to create a neutral zone around Shanghai, Premier Konoye in Tokyo said:

JAPAN "NOT UNDERSTOOD"

"I think all these are the result of the powers' lack of proper understanding of Japan's position. Japan does not attach much importance to these proposals from foreign powers."

The Premier added that he expected repercussions of the war abroad would result in further moves by foreign powers.

Prince Konoye said that he had explained to the elder statesmen that, unless the Chinese reconsider, "the situation will inevitably become more intense.

JAPANESE THWARTED

Today's threat to include foreign shipping came after the Japanese effort to pinch off the Chinese front lines north of Shanghai and open the way to the city had been thwarted by determined Chinese resistance.

Japanese claims that the Chinese were retreating on all parts of the front and were on the verge of wholesale withdrawals all the way from Yangtze were not borne out by foreign observers.

United States marines, guarding the International Settlement border, reported Chinese positions in Chapei were unchanged.

Disabled El Motor Results in Tieup

China Fights for Honor

JAPAN JEALOUS, WELLESLEY GRAD SAYS

Japan's jealously of China's steady progress is directly responsible for the grave situation which has arisen in the Far East, according to Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the dictator of China and herself commander-in-chief of the Chinese air force.

In the following article, the Wellesley graduate sets forth her views of the conflict.

By MME. CHIANG KAI-SHEK

MME. CHIANG KAI-SHEK

Nanking, Aug. 26—Because the Chinese people have done no more than endeavor to live their own lives in peace and transform the chaotic aftermath of revolution into unified order and progress, they are being slaughtered wherever the Japanese can get at them.

But even more, Japan bitterly resents China assuming the status of a unified nation or an economically-organized and sound one. The progress of China is not only anathema to her but the thought of it enrages her to fury.

FIGHT FOR HONOR

Japan seizes Chinese territory while the whole world gazes at the spectacle. She recently assembled a great fleet in the Whangpoo river, which is Shanghai's harbor, and cleared the ships of that fleet for action.

When the excuse was considered ample, she used them under the shelter of foreign men-of-war to cannonade hundreds of thousands of innocent Chinese out of their homes and cause the flight of thousands of foreigners from their peaceful pursuits in the adjoining part of the International Settlement.

China is fighting on her own soil for defense of her hearths, homes and honor, just as any self-respecting nation has the right and duty to do. And she is not afraid.

Japan may be organized as a fighting machine, but China has found her soul and will defend her people's rights.

WANTED PEACE

China has conceded so much in the past. She has suffered and been insulted. She has accepted much humiliation. She even endured the violent rape of Manchuria, to the wonderment of the world, but only because she wished to put her own house in order and to effect national unity and a peace and prosperity which surely could have been participated in by the whole world.

The wonderful strides she was making toward this end were too much for Japanese army leaders, who saw in an organized China frustration of their long-cherished ambition—to erect at China's expense a continental empire from where they could defy the whole world.

They struck soon because they deemed the time propitious and because if they delayed it might be too late.

Again I say that China must suffer. But she is unafraid, feeling that what Japan is doing against the laws of both God and nature.

READY TO SUFFER

Justice has disappeared from practical politics if the signatories of solemn treaties can calmly contemplate war being inflicted upon an innocent and weak people without protest or restraint.

Retribution still will surely come in time as punishment for those who inflict the evil that is now vomiting death and destruction widespread about this land.

To the people of America, and especially the women, I say China will do her best to save herself and uphold her honor.

China knows only too well the horrors that confront her and the suffering that lies ahead.

But China is not afraid.

American Ships Likely to Be Boarded

Shanghai, Aug. 26 (INS)—Japan's blockade of the China coast from Shanghai to Hong Kong may result in boarding of foreign ships by Japanese sailors, the Japanese naval adviser here said today.

He asserted that while American and other foreign ships cannot legally be detained, seized or compelled to alter their course as a result of the blockade, they are liable to be boarded by Japanese for the purpose of establishing their true nationality.

War News

Nanking, Aug. 26 (AP)—John M. Allison, United States consul at Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung province, notified Ambassador Nelson Johnson he was closing the consulate today and warning all remaining American citizens to evacuate the interior.

Washington, Aug. 26 (INS)—The United States today announced the Japanese blockade, declared in effect from Shanghai to Hong Kong, would not be recognized. American warships will escort U. S. merchantmen to and from Shanghai if necessary, it was emphasized.

Paris, Aug. 26 (AP)—France will not recognize the right of blockading Japanese warships to search foreign ships in Chinese waters, sources close to the foreign office said today.

Washington, Aug. 26 (INS)—An acute food shortage at Manila caused by the influx of thousands of American refugees from the China war zone, today alarmed authorities. No less serious were reported problems of housing and sanitation and medical aid.

Mukden, Aug. 26 (INS)—Japanese authorities here today admitted they plan to support a movement for "independence" of Inner Mongolia and establishment of a Mongol state, to be styled "Mongoukuo." Twenty thousand Inner Mongolian troops co-operated with Japanese and Manchoukuoan forces in smashing the Chinese defenses.

LAUDS HUB MAN IN WAR ZONE

Washington, Aug. 26 (AP)—Clarence E. Gauss, American consul general at Shanghai, cabled Secretary of State Hull today his appreciation of the "outstanding assistance and fine co-operation" of a committee of Americans in Shanghai who have aided removal of American citizens.

"The American community is behaving splendidly, and all plans and measures are being carried out quietly and with restraint," Gauss said.

Gauss cited the following Americans as having been especially active in directing work of the emergency committee:

Captain Richard T. McDonnell, of Boston, former army officer, now head of an engineering construction company at Shanghai, chairman of the volunteers.

W. H. Plant, of Gardiner, Me., chairman of the American Chamber of Commerce, member of the Shanghai municipal council and head of the United States Steel Company organization.

Charles Bennett, of Andover, Mass., retired National City Bank manager, treasurer of the emergency committee.

GREEN BATTLES THREAT OF CIO NEW COUP

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 26 (INS)—In fighting mood, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today planned drastic action to counteract the recent CIO coup in West Virginia and to "clean up" the dual membership situation in Pennsylvania and other states where the rival organizations are battling for control.

Conceding that the CIO had captured the West Virginia organizational machinery, the records, the books and the convention of the State Federation of Labor, Green said the executive council of the A. F. of L. probably would decide here today to go to court in an effort to recapture the properties and records.

He declared the council would revoke the charter of the state federation there and issue a new state charter to the loyalist elements led by craft unionists.

FEAR PENNSYLVANIA COUP

The West Virginia federation, dominated by the miners, rebelled after being ordered by Green to oust local unions chartered by internationals which are affiliated with the CIO.

Anticipating that the CIO may attempt a similar coup in Pennsylvania, Green declared the AFL "wouldn't stand for it."

Green said there were still other states that "we've got to clean up yet," but he did not name them. Then he said the situation growing out of dual memberships already had been "cleaned up" in Iowa, Indiana, Illinois and New York.

Lewis To Address Auto Labor Parley

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 26 (AP)—The dynamic figure of CIO Chieftain John L. Lewis loomed today over the strife-torn United Automobile workers' convention scene as new outbursts of disruption ripped to shreds his lieutenants' pleas for harmony.

Announcement that Lewis would address the delegates tomorrow morning came as delegates engaged in bitter charges and counter charges that "obstructive tactics" were being used to delay convention business.

The uproar in the debate over President Homer Martin's charge the convention was being "embarrassed" by "obstructionists using obstructive tactics" turned to cheers last night when Martin disclosed Lewis would appear.

Jury Deadlocked In Child Slaying

Los Angeles, Aug. 26 (AP)—The fate of Albert Dyer, charged with the murder of three little Inglewood girls, two of them former residents of Dorchester, Mass., still was undecided today. It was reported the jury, out since 3:30 p. m. Tuesday, was deadlocked 11 to 1 for the death sentence.

Superior Judge Thomas White announced if no agreement had been reached by tonight, he would discharge the jury.

Dr. Harold Rollins Gets College Post

Dr. Harold Rollins, one of the first newsboys in Boston who aided in the founding of the Newsboys' Protective Union in 1901, was today appointed head of the department of applied optics at Blue Ridge College, New Windsor, Md., according to word received here.

SENATORS FEAR NEW STRUGGLE ON COURT PLAN

Washington, Aug. 26 (AP)—Senators who helped defeat President Roosevelt's Supreme Court plan expressed concern today that his newest appeal for judiciary reorganization portended another battle over the issue in the next Congress.

Senator King (D.) of Utah, said he interpreted the President's statement as "a continuation of the plan to change our judiciary system."

"I had hoped," he added, "there would be no continuation of the controversy."

Senator Johnson (R.) of Calif., said "Let us hope, a vain one I fear, that this (the statement) is the last of the scheme presented on February 5."

Both King and Johnson were among the leading foes of the Court bill in the long Senate controversy initiated by the President's famous message of last February 5 asking power to enlarge the Supreme Court if justices over 70 did not retire.

In announcing yesterday that he had signed the lower court procedure bill passed by Congress after defeat of his plan, the President made it plain that he still holds there should be some reorganization of the Supreme Court.

KILLS WIFE, SON SELF; MISSES MA-IN-LAW

Arlington, Vt., Aug. 26 (AP)—A 29-year-old husband, Charles Benson, today shot and killed his wife Viola, 28, and his son, Kenneth, 3, Sheriff W. Clyde Peck reported, and then committed suicide at his lone farm home here.

Peck said Benson, who came here six weeks ago from Brooklyn, N. Y., attempted to shoot his mother-in-law, Mrs. Martin Olsen, but missed.

Mrs. Benson's body was found in the doorway leading to the back yard. The son's body was on the porch and Benson's was leaning against a porch pillar.

Peck said Benson used a double-barrelled shotgun.

Reconstructing the shooting, Peck said Benson shot his wife while Mrs. Olsen was in the back yard. The two women had been preparing vegetables a minute before.

Mrs. Olsen told the sheriff she heard one shot, then a child's scream and another shot. As she hurried to the house she said Benson appeared on the porch and fired at hr. The shot went wild.

Mrs. Olson said she rushed towards a neighbor's house and while running heard a fourth shot.

Peck said he understood the Bensons, and Mr. and Mrs. Olsen, Mrs. Benson's mother and father, had rented their farm home.

He said Benson had been unemployed for some months in Brooklyn but both he, and his father-in-law, had obtained jobs in a chair factory in East Arlington. Benson quit his job yesterday, however, the sheriff said.

SCREAMS GIVE ALARM

Although Peck said he was unable to give a reason for the shooting he declared he was told Benson had been despondent and morbid for some time.

Mrs. Olsen's screams as she ran for help gave the alarm, and neighbors quickly summoned Deputy Sheriff Robert Young.

Peck said Olsen, Benson's father-in-law, was in the front of the house when the shooting occurred.

The farmhouse is located on an extension of the road on which is located the home of 20-months-old Alice Lorraine Baker, who was found last Friday, after she had been missing in the woods for four days and four nights.

48 TECH PRIZES IN BOSTON AREA

Massachusetts Institute of Technology officials today announced the award of undergraduate scholarship to 48 students in the Greater Boston area.

Competing with hundreds of students from all over the country, 40 Boston first year students of high scholastic standing won freshman competitive scholarships.

Three Milton students will divide the Milton High School scholarship established by the Institute in 1885. Those who will share the $500 award are Stanley E. Weber, who will begin his Freshman year this Fall; Leonard W. Weaver, member of the class of 1940, and Donald R. Barnaby, a senior in the Institute.

The annual Cambridge scholarships, awarded to residents of that town, were won by James F. Healey and Vitaut F. Janulevicius, Rindge Technical High School graduates, and John F. Lyons, Elliott N. Shaw and Harry Wasserman, all graduates of Cambridge Latin and High schools.

Reading Teacher Suicide in N. H.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 26—The body of a man found dead from gas fumes in a boarding house here was identified today as Edward Charles Bonner, a teacher in Reading junior high school.

Rockingham County Medical Referee Frederick Gray pronounced his death a suicide.

The identification was made by Floyd Hathaway of Sherman street, Everett, who was located in Ogunquit, Me., by Portsmouth police, and who said he had been vacationing in Ogunquit with Bonner.

According to police, Bonner came from Ogunquit to Portsmouth Monday and hired a room in Bates street. In the room he removed all labels from his clothes and burned them with a letter and other papers.

He was later found dead by gas.

Mooney Carnival Banned by Mayor

As the result of a disturbance last night, Mayor Mansfield today revoked the amusement license of the William E. Mooney Associates, Ward 11, Jamaica Plain and Roxbury, conductors of a carnival in South street, Jamaica Plain.

The organization, said to be in support of Representative William E. Mooney of that ward, opened its carnival last Monday, but so great was the disturbance last night, police said, that they were called in.

Formal complaints were made at City Hall today, including one from the Rev. William J. Casey, pastor of St. Thomas' Church, which adjoins the carnival site.

Assistant City Censor Joseph Mikolajewski was sent out to investigate and as a result of his report the license was revoked.

Lands Safe After 16 Days at Sea

Fears for the safety of Vincent Forlando, Fleet street fisherman who had been unreported since he sailed for Provincetown aboard his 38-foot boat, San Palagero, on August 10, were allayed today when Forlando tied up at a Provincetown wharf, coast guard officials reported.

Forlando completed his lengthy voyage less than an hour after all coast guard vessels and stations between here and Provincetown had been notified to look for the boat.

Order Settlement

Athol, August 26—The closed Athol National Bank today had been ordered by Federal Judge George C. Sweeney to accept $725 in full compromise settlement of the $5784 owed the bank by debtors on promissory notes and stock assessments.

San Francisco, Aug. 26 (AP)—Dr. James Bryant Conant, youthful president of Harvard University, was disclosed today as an amateur Alpinist.

Jules Eichorn, noted mountain climber, and Francis Farquhar, president of the California Sierra Club, said they, Conant, and another man, last week scaled 14,254-foot North Palisade Mountain.

GEORGIA FAILS TO ACT ON TRIO EXTRADITION

Failure of Georgia authorities to take action against three Georgia youths held here on charges of auto larceny in that state was revealed today by Assistant U. S. Attorney Frank W. Tomasella.

The federal attorney notified U. S. Commissioner Howard W. Robbins that the southern state had refused to institute extradition proceedings or to prosecute the trio, whom Commissioner Robbins today held for the grand jury in bail of $1000 each.

It was the latest development in the series of extradition squabbles between Massachusetts and Georgia since Governor Hurley refused to accede to requests for the extradition of a fugitive from a Georgia chain gang several months ago.

REMANDED TO JAIL

Finding probable cause, the commissioner remanded the youths to East Cambridge Jail when Tomasella asserted that sufficient security had not been offered.

They are held under charges of violating the Dyer Act, Federal law designed to prevent the interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, and for the alleged violation of the Georgia auto larceny statute.

The youths are Fred W. Thacker, 18, and George Nichol Raftis, 16, of Atlanta, and James Lee Jackson of Granville, Ga.

CONFESSED, SAY POLICE

Police say they confessed after their arrest in Roxbury Crossing two weeks ago that they stole the car, said to be the property of the Carolina Sandwich Company of Atlanta, in that city on August 4.

Coming to Boston, according to police, the youths engaged in an extended joy ride through most beaches in this vicinity, sleeping in the car and remaining for some time at Revere Beach.

Tomasella told the court that Georgia authorities "gave no reason" for their silence in the case.

Mussolini Sees 4-Power Pact as Barrier to War

In the fourth of a series of special articles from the major capitals of Europe on the prospect of a European war, Seymour Berkson, night editor of International News Service, feels the pulse of Fascist Italy and gives his diagnosis.

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

Rome, Aug. 25 (INS)—Premier Mussolini is determined to avoid a European war.

Italy's militant dictator—the only statesman in Europe who can boast of 15 years of continuous power—is convinced that a long period of peace and security on the continent is absolutely essential to his nation.

I learn on the highest authority that Il Duce is swinging Italian foreign policy back from the aggressive tempo of his Ethiopian campaign and his Spanish civil war intervention to the 4-power peace plan of the ill-fated Stresa conference of 1935.

Italy's current diplomatic rapprochement with Britain is only the first step.

4-POWER PACT

Mussolini hopes to bring Britain, Germany, France and Italy into a four-power alignment which he believes can save Europe from war, at the same time increasing Italy's position as a major power and his own prestige as a dominating force in European politics.

Considerable credit for achieving the new Italo-British accord belongs to Mussolini's handsome young son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, whom Il Duce is now openly grooming as his most likely successor.

Ciano, at 34 the world's youngest foreign minister, has been entrusted by his father-in-law with working out the details of the new accord with Britain.

I had occasion to see Ciano in action in his spacious office in Palazzo Chigi at the height of the Anglo-Italian negotiations.

He was on the long distance phone time and time again with Count Dino Grandi, Italy's ambassador to London, and it was easy to see that here was no mere puppet-diplomat. He was running the show—even on matters of the utmost delicacy.

ONLY TEMPORARY PACT

Vociferous as Fascist spokesmen are in proclaiming that the Rome-Berlin axis is as strong as ever, the inside story is that the axis has never been and probably never will be more than a temporary alliance of political convenience.

Superficially, Mussolini and Hitler are staunch allies.

But beneath the surface, it is easy to sense mutual distrust surrounding Italo-German relations.

Both here and in Berlin, I gathered that the Rome-Berlin axis was pretty much an outgrowth of a chain of circumstances beginning with the Ethiopian war that made it good politics for the two nations to stand together.

In return for Germany's support in her time of need, Italy conceded the Nazi regime a free-hand in Austria. In the Spanish civil war again they found a community of interests—to halt the rise of a communistic regime in western Europe.

NOT WAR ALLIES

But those who best understand the strategy of Il Duce say that he would never join hands with Hitler in an aggressive war against another European power.

There is a point beyond which the expansion and success of Nazi Germany might become a threat to Italy itself. And nobody knows this better than Premier Mussolini.

Il Duce is too masterful a statesman to allow himself to become embroiled in any game of "dictator eat dictator."

Coming down to Rome from Berlin, I passed through the famed Brenner Pass in the Alps and saw tremendous military activity everywhere along Italy's northern frontier. New camouflaged military airdromes; bristling fortifications heavily garrisoned; and altogether an atmosphere of precaution.

Mussolini takes no chances.

ARMY OF 8,000,000

On the whole, however, I saw much less military fanfare in Italy on this trip than I have on previous ones. There seems to be a disposition on the part of Il Duce to give his people a breathing spell from thoughts of war. There are even fewer uniformed Fascists on the streets. The people themselves seem calmer.

Premier Mussolini can muster 8,000,000 soldiers overnight for any eventuality. He is still feverishly developing one of the most powerful air forces in Europe.

But the keynote is defense, security. This has been demonstrated in the recent army maneuvers in Sicily which emphasized defensive strategy throughout.

There is no war spirit in Italy, despite its militant discipline and regimentation.

Throughout Italy on the walls of buildings you will find huge painted signs bearing such symbols of Il Duce's political philosophy as this:

"Our peace depends upon our armed strength."

SPIRITS IN THE DARK

Unseen Hands Write for Lake

wished to carry away the legends, signatures and sketches as evidence of spiritual penmanship.

So now, obligingly, the spirits scribble on blank cards placed between the double slates, which are of the old-fashioned, country schoolhouse sort with wooden frames and felt bound edges.

It was difficult, my psychic friends said, to obtain a sitting with Mr. Keeler, who is growing obdurate and testy with his advancing years and who selects his sitters from the parade of Spirit seekers who wear the paint off his porch.

Indeed, one might sit for hours holding one edge of the slate while Mr. Keeler holds the other and never hear so much as a scratch or scribble inside the instrument. Still, to sensitive folk, they sometimes come in fifteen minutes with a rattling and clatter of internal scrivenings.

For there was no more stirring sensation in Lily Dale, said psychic friends, than to feel the slates vibrate like the strings of a fiddle, while unseen hands dotted i's and crossed t's with an almost boisterous vigor.

Keeler Accepts Lake For Seance

I was fortunate. Mr. Keeler had risen from his breakfast as I knocked on his screen door. He lives in a pretty bungalow on Cottage street, with a large American flag hanging over the threshold where flecks of sunlight filter through the elms and dance in bright splashes on his porch.

He is a strong-jawed ancient with sagging jowls and a bulge of loose flesh in the V of his batwing collar. He stroked his whiskers and said he would "accept" me because his oculist in Dunkirk had telephoned not to come for an eye-examination today. So his schedule was free.

My shuffle-footed host led me into a library littered with books, papers and implements of occultism. There were leather easy-chairs and a central table on which a large, hinged slate lay open and clean. There was a packet of blank cards and a dish of rubber bands.

"Have you ever had a slate reading before?" asked Mr. Keeler in a throaty rumble ending in an asthmatic "Harrumph."

I said indeed I had not.

"Then," said he, "do not expect too many revelations that may be pertinent to your private life. The best are obtained by those who have tuned themselves to my vibration in previous sittings."

His hands were slightly palsied as he selected six white cards and fitted them edge-to-edge on one side of the slates.

He dropped several loose pencil leads on top of the cards and folded over the other side of the slate so that both cards and leads lay in perhaps a quarter inch clearance between top and bottom slates. Around the outside he snapped several elastic bands.

"Now," said Mr. Keeler, "you must write the names of several loved ones who have passed to spirit side."

Written Names Placed on Slate

I wrote names at random on a pad of scratch paper, folding the sheet and handing it to the old man, who took it in his shaking hand and slipped it under the rubber bands on the outside of the uppermost slate.

For several long moments he sat meditatively in an upholstered chair, his hands trembling on his knees and inhaling deep and wheezing breaths.

A hall clock ticked deliberately like the dripping of a leaky tap. A housekeeper made discreet clatters with the breakfast dishes. A neighboring canary trilled.

And Mr. Keeler sat with his multiple chins overflowing his collar and with his milky-blue eyes fixed on a carpet pattern.

A slow burbling began to come from his lips, faint and inarticulate tongue lollings. He wrote something with a pencil on the knee of his trousers, cocking an ear sidewise in a listening attitude and nodding sagely as he wrote more kneecap notes.

By preliminary order I sat and said nothing. Now came those familiar whistling whispers which mediums like T. John Kelly and others of "clairaudient power" tell me emanates from the thorax, though how they do not say.

To me they seemed to come from Mr. Keeler's partly-opened mouth.

"Ssswishawiss," they hissed like a faraway soda fountain, dying, rising and fading, "Hashaassfuss . . ."

Psychics "Hear" Voices Anytime

"Yes . . ." said Mr. Keeler, with an obedient nod. "Thank you . . . all right."

In fact, I have stood talking with many of the itinerant mediums, conversing on nothings when they would suddenly interrupt themselves to say:

"Don't do that," or "Thank you."

For, apparently, a psychic hears voices anywhere at any time. So Mr. Keeler's state was not a trance, as it is effected by such trance mediums as Rev. Maggie Waite, "Moon Trail" Hambling and T. John Kelly, who induce a kind of catalepsis by "rhythmic breathing" or "soul tuning."

As Mr. Keeler explained later, his particular "Teacher" is a departed stage comedian named George Christie, who I gathered was a Broadway hoofer and gagman in the early '90s. He did not require a trance.

"Now," said Mr. Keeler, rising in two efforts and picking up the slates like a serving maid handles hot plates, "pinch your end tightly between both thumbs and forefingers and I will hold the other edge with my finger tips."

We sat facing each other on two cane-bottomed chairs, with the slate jointly held and while Mr. Keeler watched the slates I watched Mr. Keeler.

Occasionally he would "harrumph" his asthmatic cough or adjust his dental plates with his tongue. The hall clock struck a rheumatic chime as tuneless as a bedspring.

Once, some abdominal gasses rose in Mr. Keeler's chest and he made a protracted hiccuping sound, afterward swallowing moistly with a sigh.

It was nearly twenty-two minutes before the slate started a gentle titillation, tremors which became increasingly perceptible and turned gradually to jiggles that made Mr. Keeler's cuffs shake. The jiggles seemed mostly to come from his end.

"Messages" Found on Medium's Cards

Now came a vague rasping noise resembling a puppy scratching at the kitchen door or somebody scraping a finger nail on the slate bottom.

The tremblings and finger nail ticklings were concurrent and there were little taps as though the inner pencil leads were dotting i's and crossing t's.

Then would come moments when there were no grating sounds at all, as though the spiritual pencil-pusher was pausing to moisten his point and searching his soul for further remarks.

In all, the seance had lasted 29 minutes when the slate sounded three sharp taps, loud as a knuckle-tap on a window pane.

"It is complete," said Mr. Keeler, solemnly taking the slate into his possession.

He removed the rubber bands and laid the two sides open. He picked up the cards one by one, flipping them over on reverse side and showing on two of them thin wavering pencil lines. There was a signature of Ronald F. McClune, 1887, in a cramped handwriting.

"Do you know of a Mr. McClune who died in 1887?" asked Mr. Keeler.

I said "No."

There were other autographs in different writings, a Herman C. Turpin in a bold, upright script, and that of a Mary Glendenning in a leaning, lacelike scrawl.

A half-formed, and inept, profile of a child's face was in one corner of a card, and several sentences on the other, one of which said:

"Worry not and strive, for there are fruitful things to come," and "We are waiting patiently dear one, Andy."

None of them held any significance.

"You may keep the cards," said Mr. Keeler, returning the four unmarked ones to his table packet. "I feel you have strong psychic powers to have obtained revelations so quickly."

I thanked him, paid his fee and followed his shuffling gait to the screen door. A thin man with pinched cheeks and a plump and uncorsetted lady with gray bobbed hair stopped rocking and looked up expectantly as I went down the steps.

Mr. Keeler was examining them in his throaty rumble as I passed the rear of the white wooden Auditorium whence a masculine voice rose to baritone crescendos.

"Image forth mentally an inlet at the top of your heads and an outlet at the solar plexus," echoed the voice of "Moon Trail" Hambling through the opened shutters.

A man in shirtsleeves, held up by rose satin garters, and a woman with a purple parasol were buying a plaster Indian head—sympol of the Spiritualists, in a pavilion store where postcards, beads, trinkets and souvenir gauds were for sale.

"Feel a clean, fresh blowing wind enter the head inlet," shouted "Moon Trail," "and carrying all your mental cobwebs before it . . ."

Along Third street mediums and their families waited on verandas for clients. Elizabeth Fisher, the Scotch mystic, displayed pink gums as she smiled. Ruth Clark sat solemnly sewing.

Alice Rich showed her Sarah Bernhardt profile. Mrs. Furrier, whose shingle advertised "psychometric-Spiritual readings," was reciting a pudding recipe to a neighboring housewife. T. John Kelly was nursing a stomach-ache.

Hope in Eyes Of All at Seance

People with cameras were strolling through the sun-speckled glades toward Inspiration Stump, where journeymen psychics were giving a spirit-photo seance. Some of the picture takers appeared humble, plain of feature and dress. Others were tailored and sleek.

All had hope in their eyes and nodded "hellos" with affable dignity as I walked along with the Rev. Mrs. Ann Taylor, the chuckle-loving medium from Brooklyn.

A gaunt, male mystic was standing on the stump with his hands outstretched, eyes closed and his pant legs shivering with emotion. He was a trance medium named F. O. Skelly, who alternately shouted and whispered messages for the people who ranged on the benches beneath.

Men and women aimed the nozzles of their cameras at the stump, careful to get a background of sky and foliage and my neighbor, from Manchester, N. H., named John N. Peavey, showed me a batch of spirit snapshots taken some weeks before, indicating the faces and forms in the leafy verdure with a stained thumbnail.

"Look there," he said confidently, "see that face. The eyes here and the nose and mouth at the edge of that branch."

I looked at the picture intently and saw that the leaf formations and twigs did form the semblance of a face, though I did not say to the old gentleman that sunshine and sky behind a tangle of boughs, holes, crotches and leaves were sure to produce a semblance of human features in at least one combination in every snapshot.

Electric Powers Attributed to Billy

No matter. It was sufficient that this was a "revelation" to the honest-hearted elder.

"What matter the nature of the faith," whispered the Rev. Mrs. Taylor, who is a skeptic on spectacular forms of Spiritualism, "if the faith be strong."

"I have a message for Margaret," shouted the man on the stump, pointing to his left.

"Yes," piped a timid voice.

"Mildred is here, too."

"She is welcome," said the timid voice.

I went away through the well-worn path where damp earth odors rose and tall-stemmed trees formed a cool canopy.

At the edge of the wood a tall and dark-skinned man in moccasins, beaded wristlets and beaded band around his long, black hair, stood talking to Billy Hammond, the Spiritualists' vice-president.

It is said of Billy that a common electric light bulb held near his abdomen will burn brightly and glow as long as it remains in contact with his middle.

The long-haired one, said Mrs. Taylor, was an Indian psychic singer who had pitched his tepee in the deep tangled wildwood out yonder and sold hand-hammered copper jewelry as a sideline.

There was a bustle of preparation in the picnic grove where women barbecued a lamb on an open spit, tended steaming kettles and unboxed baked goods. For, tonight was the annual spaghetti and meatball party of the Spiritualists' Men's Club. There was free fun and food for everyone.

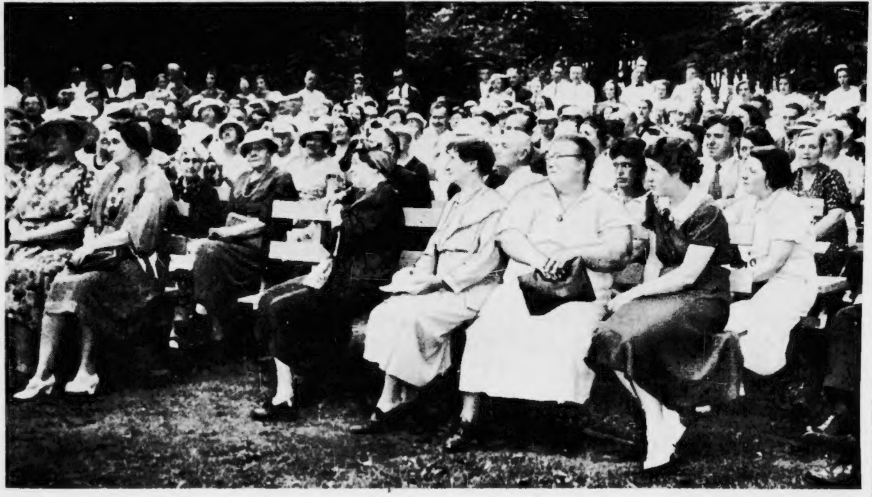
Far down the road the wooden kiosk called the Forest Temple was surrounded by more suppliants while mediums gave "readings."

Just beyond the pine copse stood the Fox Cottage where the spirits of "Uncle Ike," "Georges" and "Charley" would be tapping the woodwork with invisible knuckles. Everywhere about the town people were mixing fun and religion.

Lily Dale was happy.

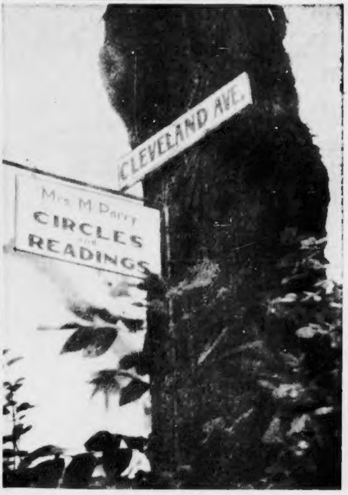
"Table-tipping to a medium is like playing chopsticks to a concert pianist." That's what Austen Lake says in tomorrow's fascinating installment of "Spirits in the Dark." Lake takes his readers with him to a table-tipping seance in this city of Lily Dale, N. Y.—the Psychic City.

TYPICAL SCENES IN LILY DALE, WHERE CURIOUS, FAITHFUL HEAR FROM THE PAST



Boston Evening American Photos.

What a show of facial expressions snapped as listeners hear mediums read messages just a few feet away from Lily Dale's Inspiration Stump. On Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday larger sessions find hundreds gathered for this part of the Spiritualist program.



Lily Dale is a beautiful place. It's a town in itself. Lanes and paths and roads are named. Here you see Cleveland avenue sign attached to a tree.

A thank-you for a wonderful message. Kathryn Jungen of Jersey City, N. J., on the platform of the auditorium at Lily Dale, from where she delivered messages to a large audience. Mrs. Margaret Hartshorne of Cleveland is congratulating the young medium.

Then Lake describes an experience with Fred Larson, a vacationing psychic, who produces "spirit photos" without benefit of a camera.

And as matters in Lily Dale become "curiouser and curiouser," Lake tells how he was in Psychic City less than four days when T. John Kelly, a Welsh psychic, gave him a complete family history that would have taken a detective a month to acquire.

These are only a few of the highly entertaining and descriptive incidents portrayed by Lake in tomorrow's installment.

CHAPTER 28

"Don't act so worried, kiddo. Sure I ain't arguing about you being a French marquise. For all I know you may be. And more power to you, if you can get away with it! But to come down to brass tacks, I gotta get a hundred bucks and quick, too."

"For—Herman?"

"Yes. Herman's sure up against it. If he can't shell out by tomorrow morning, the cops'll be after him. He's in a jam."

"Tonight I'm being paid. I'll ask a week's advance, so as to help you out, Cassie. Will you come here in the morning for the hundred dollars?"

"It might be too late. I've a better plan. Let me slip into the club and see your last show. I guess it'd be bad business if Niklas saw us confabing, being as how"—she winked—"I ain't classy enough for his marquise! Tell me where you'll put the money, and I'll get it. That's simple."

Simple? The web of subterfuge!

"I wouldn't press you, but I'm afraid Herman'll turn nasty. He's—on. He sure is cagey."

"The money," said Toni, "will be under the cushion of my chair. My table is on the right hand side of the club, near the orchestra. I'll leave my fan on it when I go on the floor to sing, so you won't make any mistake."

TWO VISITORS

They were in the foyer when the doorbell rang. Toni opened the door. On the threshold stood Harriet Brewster and Brock Milbank.

"And who," asked Brock gayly, "was your somewhat rabbity-looking friend?"

"Just a girl looking for a job," Toni said coldly.

Harriet said carelessly: "I've seen her before. Doesn't she dance in a cafe on Broadway?"

"I'm sure I really don't know."

Strange how one had to fib. Toni detested it.

"What an enchanting place!"

"The salon is rather lovely. Come in, won't you, please?"

Miss Brewster in the salon, was registering delighted surprise. She knew antiques. She had discriminating taste.

"This is superb? Marquise!"

A LITTLE CHAT

Toni drew sharply away from Brock. She suggested drinks for the visitors.

"We'll just have one cocktail, and then Brock has to run along, and you and I will have a little chat, Marquise."

Brock said: "May we see the boudoir, please?"

"Certainly. It, too, is rather lovely." Toni contrived that touch of broken accent which often, regrettably, was lacking.

A long, amazed "Oh!" broke from the heiress at sight of the bed.

"This has come down through the centuries in your family, Marquise?" She was examining the carved figure at the foot of the bed.

Brock cut in with a swift: "Yes."

"Priceless!" She examined the picture closely, then they moved back to the salon.

Toni mixed cocktails for them, but declined one for herself.

"I am going to bring a large party to your Pastoral Fete at the club. On what night is it to be given?" Harriet inquired.

"On New Year's Eve."

"Niklas was telling me about it. Even the sheep and the ducks are to drink champagne," exclaimed Harriet. "So awfully original!"

Brock rose presently.

"I'll toddle along and do those commissions for you now, Harriet. Dinner at eight?"

"At eight."

The two women were left alone.

CROSS-EXAMINED

Without preamble, Harriet asked:

"Has Guy seen this place. Has he been here?"

"Oh, no," replied Toni.

"He's a charming fellow, isn't he?"

"He seems—pleasant."

"He's a dear. A great friend of mine."

A pause.

"I shall invite him for my party on New Year's Eve."

"He seems to enjoy the club," said Toni cautiously.

"I think you knew him in Paris. Or didn't you, Marquise?"

Careful—thought Toni.

"Not that I remember."

"Oh, he isn't the sort one would forget"—with assumed surprise.

HARRIET'S OFFER

"An artist like you should not be performing in a New York night-club. Except for a few nice people—appreciative music lovers—it's—well, like casting pearls before swine. After the Pastoral Fete, too, the better class of people will be going south or, like myself, to the Riviera. You know, I can get you a marvelous engagement in Cannes."

So she wanted her to leave New York, did she? Because of Guy? That was understandable.

"But, Miss Brewster, I enjoy my work here."

"Your success, of course." This with a patronizing smile. "You are new to New York and it strikes me you know nothing of Broadway. For me, as a visitor, it's different; amusing in the 'little season.' But for you, Marquise"—the smile slid off—"it is my belief that it's dangerous!"

What Guy had already hinted!

"How? I get my salary. I'm paid."

"It won't pay you long."

"How do you mean?"

"Haven't you heard that the most popular night clubs are run by gangster money?" Harriet Brewster demanded.

"You mean—Niklas?"

Miss Brewster shrugged. "Oh, one couldn't be sure. But if it comes to a show-down, you'll be involved, dragged into whatever developed. I mean, if the place were closed down."

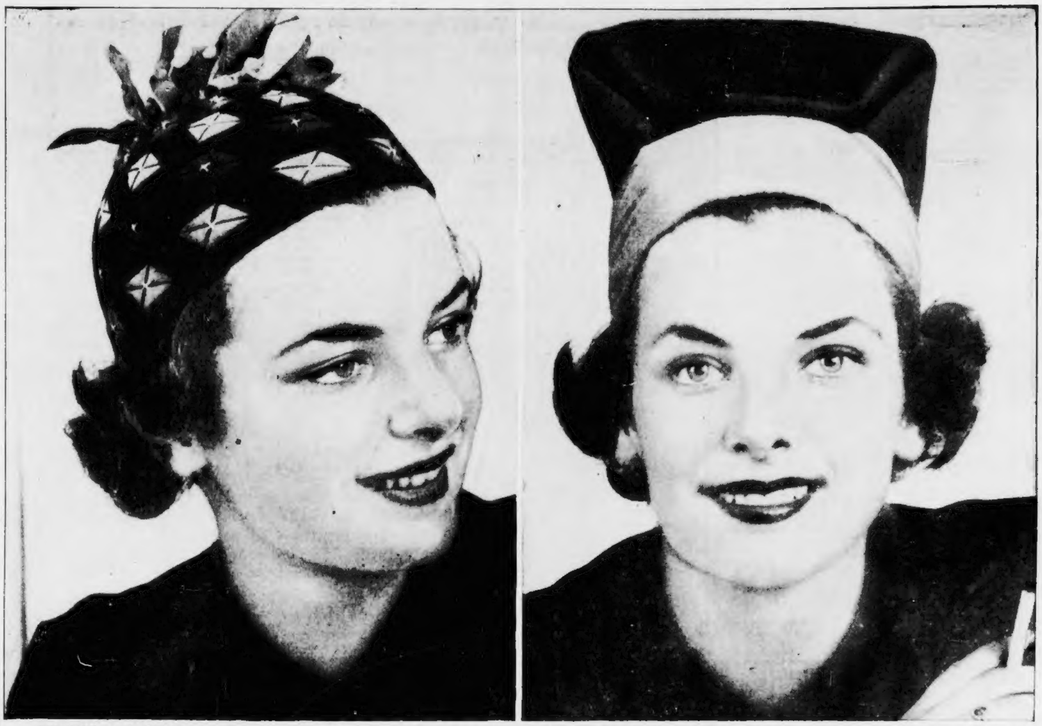
Autumn's Small Hats Are More Fun Than Ever



PERHAPS you don't choose to go sweepingly dramatic in the 1900 manner, or violently nonchalant with what looks like the chimney pots of Paris towering over your brow, or to go draped with velvets exotic enough to make a crown for an African tribal chief . . . you want a small hat, a becoming and cute bonnet. One you'll wear to the movies with an approving masculine side-kick. And you're absolutely not going to pay over ten dollars for it. Nearer five, as a matter of fact. We catch the idea. And here is a pair of smart, small bonnets today, modeled by Miss Betty Stone.

Proving that calots just won't lapse into the background is the black felt number, left. It's strung around and around with multi-colored grosgrain ribbons that are stitched down wherever they appear. And turn into pickaninny knots on top.

Right, your brow is bound with brilliant blue synthetic jersey, having a mat finish, and then all of a sudden the black felt crown does a duck-bill. That's one of the Paris-inspired ideas, a forward and upward thrust that's draped a bit on each side. Grand for your first black fall frock. And later on you'll wear it with your town coat.

For shopping information on either hat, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, Liberty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

MEASUREMENTS MAKE FIGURE

By Ida Jean Kain

A FINE figure is no longer the monopoly of the perfect 36. Streamlines come in sizes 12, 14 and even 18, provided you are curved according to structure. It's not your size, it's your shape that matters!

You can test your figure by these measurements:

The perfect 32 (grownup for size 12) measures like this: Bust, 33 to 34 inches; waist, 25 to 25½ inches; hips, 34 to 35 inches.

The perfect 34, size 14: Bust, 34 to 35 inches; waist, 26 to 27 inches; hips, 35 to 35½ inches.

Perfect 36, size 16: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 28 inches; hips, 37 inches.

Perfect 38, size 18: Bust, 38 inches; waist, 29 to 30 inches; hips, 39 inches.

If a misplaced inch or two stands between you and your perfect size, you can alter your measurements.

To normalize the bust contour, where weight is no problem, strengthen the pectoral muscles of the chest. The following exercise will lift the bust to normal, lovely position:

POSITION: Stand erect, in good posture, hands down at sides.

MOVEMENT: Inhaling, slowly raise the arms in front of the body, elbows straight, to shoulder level. Now, turn the palms up and, separating the arms, continue the movement around to the sides until they extend straight out from the shoulders. Exhale while slowly lowering the arms to the sides. Repeat 10 times.

This measurement is the one most influenced by weight and health. The bust contour is loveliest with normal weight and good muscle tone.

For perfect measurements, there is an eight-inch difference between the bust and the waistline. In any size, a thick waist makes a middle-age figure. Here is an exercise that will make your waistline:

POSITION: Sit back on the floor, heels turned out at the sides back of the body. Clasp the hands at the base of the neck, elbows straight.

MOVEMENT: Bending at the waist, touch the right elbow to the right heel; return to position; touch the left elbow to the left heel. Practice makes a perfect waistline.

Do the following exercise for the hips and the derriere:

POSITION: Get down on all fours in a sprinter's position, one leg extended fairly straight out behind, the forward knee bent.

MOVEMENT: On your mark, get set, go! Change position of the feet as rapidly as possible, twenty times.

If, discounting laziness, there is no reason why you should not exercise, do a dozen daily for perfect measurements.

Send for the "Bust Reducing" or the "Bust Developing Exercises," the "Exercises to Stretch the Fat from Waistline, Ribs and Wishbone," and the "Rolling Exercises." Enclose a large, stamped and addressed envelope in writing for the leaflets. Address your request to Miss Kain, in care of this paper.

Ends Menu Monotony

By MARTHA LEE

NOTHING relieves menu monotony as quickly as food with a foreign flavor.

The dish itself need not be an authentic reproduction of some foreign culinary masterpiece.

The ingredients in the original recipe may be too difficult to secure so far from their native clime. An adaptation of a foreign dish, however, always inspires interest.

Perhaps it is the manner in which it is prepared or served. Take Italian spinach, for example. It is prepared with a rich cheese sauce and served from an oven proof casserole, and is so rich in food elements that it makes a delightful as well as well-balanced main dish when meat is not served as the piece de resistance.

To give the dish added appetite appeal the American homemaker adds a purely American accent—a topping of savory bacon cubes and crisp corn flake crumbs. The result is effective.

ITALIAN SPINACH

¾ cup milk
8 ounces packaged cheese (melting type)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3½ cups cooked spinach
1 cup corn flakes
3 slices bacon

Heat milk and cheese in top of double boiler, stirring until cheese is melted. Add seasonings. Drain spinach thoroughly and place in casserole. Over it pour the milk and cheese mixture. Crush corn flakes slightly, mix with diced bacon and sprinkle over mixture in casserole. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F) about 30 minutes. Serves six. Note: If fresh spinach is used, cook in small amount of water, drain and chop.

Eye-Wrinkle Cream

TO COUNTERACT the ravages of these summer months we need preparations of the purest of oils, balms and herbal roots for weary complexions.

Lines appear around the eyes first of all—whether they come of strong sun, laughter or encroaching years—it does not matter.

Maybe they are only tiny criss-cross lines, but they are the forerunners of deeply etched wrinkles to come. Catch them young, however, and they won't get far.

This is where a specially prepared cream for nourishing fagged tissues around the eyes comes in. A gentle absorbent cream which through its highly nourishing qualities overcomes lines and wrinkles caused by squinting, dry skin and fatigue.

Pat this eye cream gently under and over the eyes and leave on overnight. It is especially prepared with oils that need this length of time to perform their task more efficiently. Although thin and seemingly mild, although put up in a modest jar, this cream seems geared to hard work.

By the end of the week you will be peeping into the mirror, refusing to believe the change, doubting that the wrinkles were ever there! You are whistling little tunes under your breath and stealing side-long glances into the mirrors you pass. In triumph you offer other women the chair turned away from the light.

If you would like to know the name of this remarkable penetrating cream which placates wrinkles that appear around the eyes, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Beauty Answers

QUESTION: You have written several times in your articles the need of brushing the hair in order to restore its own brilliance and make it healthy. I am in need of a good hair brush and will be most grateful to you if you will please advise me where I may purchase such a brush at a moderate price. D. G. Swampscott.

ANSWER: On the market is a light-weight extra stiff bristle brush for only one dollar. This brush is a miniature edition of a hair brush marvel that sells at a luxurious price. You will find it designed to clean and polish the scalp and hair thoroughly. If you will telephone Arline Gould at Liberty 4000 or write, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope, I will be glad to give you the name and where this brush may be purchased as I cannot mention trade names in my column.

STRANGE MESSAGE FOR MADGE

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER [illegible]

I FOUND MY pulse distinctly accelerated as I followed Katie to the kitchen after her message that Jim wished to see me there.

"I hope you'll excuse me for sending for you this way," he said awkwardly. "I know I hain't no call to do it, but I'm not supposed to leave this side of the house unless somebody relieves me, and there's a junkman out here, looking for old papers and magazines and old clothes, who says he's got to see you."

GUARDS PASSED HIM

"But how did a junkman get in here?" I asked, genuinely puzzled at this flagrant infraction of my father's rule that no strangers were to be permitted to come within even hailing distance of the farmhouse.

Jim shifted his feet, and he swallowed hard. Then his eyes met mine significantly.

"Those guards of your father's let him come in," he said.

My pulses were pounding now. If the guards had let the man through, he must have something of great importance to tell me.

"Then I will see him at once," I said. "Where is he?"

"Under the apple tree, just outside the door," Jim returned. "At first he said he wasn't to give his message to anybody but Mr. Graham or Mr. Underwood, but when I told him they wouldn't be back till late, he asked if you were here and said he would give it to you.

"I'll go with you out there," Jim went on. "Then I'll have to get out of hearing, because he said nobody must hear his message except you. But I'll be just outside the door here, if you need me."

And he was no junkman, I was sure of that, although he looked the part to perfection. But when, after a sharp glance at the retreating Jim, evidently satisfying himself that he could not hear our conversation, he said a bit tensely:

"Mrs. Graham, I have a message for you, but it is in code," his voice and manner were entirely different from those investing the few words I had heard him mutter to Jim.

"That is all right," I said. "I can read it."

"Please excuse me! I must remove my coat," he said abruptly, and the next moment he was turning a pocket of the coat inside out and opening a hidden pocket, so deftly disguised that it would have passed the inspection of any eyes save those hunting for that particular thing. From it he took an ordinary, cheap envelope, of the kind to be found in any stationery store, and held it out to me.

"I was asked to tell whoever received this to burn it directly it has been read," he said.

"It shall be burned," I assured him, and he put back his coat, took up his empty bag, and looked toward Jim.

"If you don't mind," he said, "I think it would be a good thing for your man to give me some old magazines or newspapers and a piece of old clothing for this bag."

Nuns Urged To Study Slang

Read Newspapers, Teachers Advised

"Read and study the newspapers—know something about baseball, automobiles, current slang, fashions and all the interests of a modern world," Father William H. Russell, Ph. D., advised more than 1000 nuns of the Boston diocese teaching conference.

Father Russell, professor of religion at the Catholic University of America at Washington, D. C., urged that in teaching religion, it should be tied up with something young people understand and are interested in.

The Rev. William D. O'Leary, S. J., M. D., a professor at Spring Hill College, Ala., another speaker at the conference at Boston College high school, pleaded for greater faith in human nature despite its discouragements.

"Get a problem-solving attitude," he urged. "Form the habit of meeting difficulties fair and square. Be optimistic and do not brood. Have a proper self-esteem and recognize your good qualities as well as your defects, in order to be efficient and worthwhile in the world."

Looks Like Strike In Guess Factory

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

We are much interested in Soothsayer Jack Hamilton's prediction of the end of the Democratic world. It conflicts with the Swami of Haverstraw's prophecy for 1940.

We do not know whether Hamilton is picketing Farley or whether Farley is sitting down in Hamilton's guess factory. But the score of their last game was forty-six to two.

Politicians and pugilists are always optimistic on the eve of battle. By some rare chemical process peculiar to political lungs a politician can inhale defeat and exhale confidence.

So Hamilton's prediction must be taken with the grain of salt that never flows smoothly in damp weather.

Tar Catches Fire, Threatens Gas

Worcester, Aug. 26—Officials of the Worcester Gas Company breathed sighs of relief today, following the quenching of a tar blaze that threatened to ignite 6,000,000 cubic feet of illuminating gas in their Quinsigamond avenue plant.

The tar, heated to 200 degrees Fahrenheit, caught fire as it was being loaded into a sprinkler truck and spread over an acre of territory.

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—His honesty kept Morris Eisler on the WPA payroll today.

MAGAZINE COVER GIRLS 'TRANSLATIONS'

ARTISTS FIGHT N. Y. TAX

New York, Aug 26 (AP)—Those long-limbed but well-rounded girls who grace the nation's newsstands on magazine covers—are simply "translations," and, Attorney John T. McGovern said today, the New York state court of appeals is going to be told so.

Approximately 3000 New York city artists, among them nationally known illustrators producing the bulk of illustrations for the country's popular magazines, are irate about New York city's 2 per cent sales tax.

The appellate division in test cases of artists Nevsa McMein and Arthur William Brown had just ruled the artists must pay the tax on their productions. Miss McMein and Brown engaged McGovern to carry the fight to the higher court, and the lawyer mapped his battle along these lines.

SELLING USE OF BRAIN

"These magazine illustrators," he said, "simply get galley proofs of stories from the magazine editors, and then they translate the story into drawings, just as a man might translate Russian into English.

"They sell these translations. The artist is selling the use of his brain. I don't see how they can tax that."

McGovern's indignation was backed up by such nationally known money-making artists as James Montgomery Flagg, Frank Swift Chase, McClelland Barclay, Dean Cornwell, Bradshaw Crandall, Joseph Cummings Chase, Wilfred S. Conrow, Jonas Lie and Wallace Morgan among others.

SEES ART EXODUS

"If this thing keeps up," McGovern protested, "all artists will be driven from the city. Anyone living in the suburbs of Connecticut or Long Island can sell their stuff to New York or other publishers free of the tax. But if they live inside the city limits their translations are taxed."

The city's artists, supported by the Artists Guild and the Society of Illustrators for more than two years have refused to pay the sales tax, contending art was no more taxable than a musical score.

'Book He Read' Led Boy, 16, to Suicide

A "book he read" led 16-year-old John P. Hill, Jr., of Dudley street, Roxbury, to end his life by hanging in the bedroom of his home, it was indicated today from a page in the boy's diary.

Sergeant Joseph J. Callahan of the Roxbury Crossing station, who was investigating the case, could give no reason for the act other than to reveal the boy's words.

"Everyone will ask for a reason why did he do it," the youngster wrote. "I read a book—so what!"

Members of his family said the handwriting was the boy's. The diary was found by the police officer in the boy's bedroom bureau.

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary meanwhile, today pronounced a verdict of suicide.

Resume Fin. Com. Quiz Tomorrow

Today's session of the Finance Commission public hearing on the Codman Hill Construction Co. was called off and the investigation will resume tomorrow at city hall.

George R. Farnum, counsel for the commission, who has already filed notice in Supreme Court that he may appeal to the full bench against Judge Donahue's recent ruling, was reported preparing his detailed bill of exceptions. Judge Donahue ruled Mayor Mansfield could testify further and cross-examine himself.

Councillor Norton Quits City Hospital

Youth Granted Third Death Stay

Montreal, Aug. 26 (Canadian Press)—Kenneth Brown, youthful convict from Milton, Vt., sentenced to be hanged Friday for the slaying more than two years ago of Keith Baldwin, former member of the House of Commons, has been granted another stay of execution because of illness.

The delay, the third granted the prisoner, extends to January 28, 1938. He is in Bordeaux jail on the northern outskirts of Montreal, where he is reported suffering from tuberculosis.

Setter 'Points' All Over Store

Rome, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP)—Customers in a department store here get a big laugh from an Irish setter that "points" change carriers running overhead through the store on an endless belt.

The minute a carrier starts "winging" its way to the cashier's cage, the setter starts a mad scramble to catch the "bird."

The dog comes to a point when the carriers stop.

Taking the dog home does no good, he returns to the "hunt."

Son Denounces Soviet Father

Moscow, Aug. 26 (AP)—A 14-year-old schoolboy of Baku, Transcaucasia, was commended for denouncing his father to the secret police as a counter revolutionist.

The youth newspaper Pioneer Pravda, reporting the denunciation by Vitalik Abralian, quoted the boy:

"I felt it my duty as a young Leninist."

The lad was sent to a vacation camp as a reward, not only for his "vigilance" but for good school work, the newspaper said.

Business 'Looking Up'

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—Jacques Mala, proprietor of a French restaurant, glanced upward at the hundreds of offices in the neighboring Rockefeller Center skyscraper and had an idea.

He got a bucket of white paint, climbed to the roof of his four-story building and began painting his menu in letters four feet higher.

Office workers, looking down at the tempting bill of fare, forgave Mala for spelling "bouillabaisse" with only one "s."

Harbor Victim Found Malden Man

The body of a man, taken from Chelsea creek beneath the Meridian street bridge, East Boston, was today identified at the Northern mortuary as that of Clarence H. Eldridge, 55, single, of Main street, Malden. Identification was made by Mrs. L. M. Carpenter and her daughter Marion, both of Lowell street, Malden.

Eldridge, an expressman, was despondent since the death of his mother some time ago, the medical examiner was told.

LODGE HAILED HOPE OF G.O.P.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

Down Fifth avenue in New York City will tramp the feet of tens of thousands of World War veterans when mid-September brings another national convention of the American Legion.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

It will be a grand show. A grand convention. Back to see the Statue of Liberty that welcomed us when we returned from the trenches and mud and debris of war. Back to the place we sailed from nearly twenty years ago.

"Must it happen again? Is there no better way than war? Twenty years after? Must it happen again?

"No! It need not happen again."

Those are the words with which the article, "Never Again Unless We Say So," by O. K. Armstrong begins in the September Good Housekeeping. Mr. Armstrong is a member of the American Legion and was a delegate to the recent FIDAC Congress in Paris.

Advocates Placing War Power in Public's Hands

The article, to put it simply, is an argument for an amendment to the Constitution, taking the power to declare war out of the hands of Congress and putting it solely in the hands of the citizens of the United States. Such a means is obviously the only way to keep the country out of war. A day or two ago a delegation of Congressmen petitioned the President of the United States to invoke the Neutrality Act in the Sino-Japanese war scare.

A moment of consideration will show how ineffective such an action would be to keep us out of war, in case something serious did occur. Restricting the declaration of war to a popular referendum, whether or not it would be advisable—and on that point I am definitely dubious—is obviously the only effective means. I agree with the writer of the article that it would work. As to whether it ought to work, there is where I disagree. Mr. Armstrong has no doubts.

"The fact is we're fed up with war. We know that the last war was a hellish, dirty, bestial thing, and we have more than a suspicion that it would look like a pink tea beside the next one. We believe that the great majority of our fellow Americans agree with us. Therefore we want the people to have the responsibility of declaring future wars other than one to defend our own nation.

Argues Citizens of Today Are Far Better Informed

"The Congress shall have power to declare war, says the Constitution. The founding fathers warmly debated their question. Some of the delegates wanted the people to have that important, serious responsibility. Others wanted the Chief Executive alone to exercise the power to declare war. In those days the people had little means of knowing what was going on. Popular education was but a hoped-for ideal, newspapers were few, means of communication were meager. It was finally decided to give the power to declare war to the representatives of the people in Congress.

"Today the people are informed. Education is general. The news of the world is brought to us almost upon the moment of its happening. Why the Sons of the Legion in junior high school are better informed on national and international affairs than were some of the members of Congress during Washington's administration!"

So says Mr. Armstrong. A dubious argument. Better informed, yes. But wiser, more experienced? No! School-boy information is hardly what is wanted in this matter. I should hate to trust this country's future to the kind of knowledge boys and girls are given in high school.

Pleads for Majority Vote on War Question

"A constitutional amendment should be submitted which would give to the people the power that is rightfully theirs. Congress and the President may retain their power to protect us in an emergency, but never again should the people be led into foreign wars unless by a majority vote they approve it. Never again will we send our sons to fight on foreign soil, unless the people turn their backs on peaceful diplomacy and choose rather the jungle method of trying to determine right by might."

I am afraid that this boils down to the idea that if we wish to fight we insist that it must be on the home grounds. Whether that is really an answer to the question I leave to the readers of Mr. Armstrong's interesting article to decide. I hae me doots.

PATRICK HURLEY POINTS TO RECORD

EXCLUSIVE!

"Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., has the opportunity to become the youngest President the United States has ever known."

Sincerely enthusiastic and deliberate [illegible] the end of his [illegible] Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War in the Hoover administration and powerful figure in the Republican party, made this statement today exclusively to the Boston Evening American.

Mind you, I don't say that young Lodge will become President. Nobody can know that.

I don't even say he will get the Republican nomination—it's too early to discuss campaign issues, and I'm not putting a candidate in the field or attempting to write the party platform.

"HAS FINE RECORD"

"What I do say is this: Senator Lodge has made a remarkably fine impression in the United States Senate in the time he has been there.

"He's making the greatest impression of any Republican in the party at the present time.

"And that includes Michigan's senior senator, Arthur Vandenburg, veteran G. O. P. bulwark in the Senate, prominently mentioned for the party nomination last year and generally conceded to be the most influential office holder in Republican ranks.

"I am not making any mistake in what I'm saying," declared Hurley.

"Lodge has caught the eye of the Republican party."

[illegible] from Oklahoma [illegible]

[illegible] New Mexico [illegible] law office.

"I am not a conservative—I am a liberal," the G. O. P. leader avers.

[illegible]

"When this country goes broke—and it is surely doing just that—the party that has been quietly standing by, urging economy and sane government, will be the one the people will turn to to lead us out of this morass.

"If we have a catch-all system of getting votes, pouring the federal treasury into the states to sway an election, we won't have a Republic very long.

"PAT" HURLEY

"The party to lead the American people out of the wilderness is the party that has stood by the fundamental principles of our Constitutional form of government."

STUDIES CHANGES

[illegible]

[illegible] New England states where Senator Lodge's family has [illegible] while the party standard bearer failed to carry his own state of Kansas, [illegible] Republican.

[illegible]

"Senator Lodge is an excellent young man, of splendid background, who had unquestionably rendered great service as one of 16 Republican Senators.

"If the New Dealers continue to spend money they haven't got for things they don't need, and continue their attacks on the fundamentals of Americanism, they will surely be defeated."

Senator Burke Raps Court Packing Plea

Attacking President Roosevelt's [illegible] Supreme [illegible] United States Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska [illegible]

"I disagreed fundamentally with the President's conception of what the Supreme Court is," Burke declared.

"The President complains of the 'widening chasm between the people and the courts.' He has also complained that the court system isn't co-operative with the legislative and executive branches of government, slowing up the processes of government.

"It isn't the function of the courts to 'co-operate.' They have a different duty to perform. Their business is to find the permanent will of the people, as expressed in the Constitution, acting deliberately and without political prejudice."

The [illegible] Nebraska legislator, attending the [illegible] national convention [illegible] at the Somerset Hotel, studied President Roosevelt's court message overnight, preparatory to leaving today for his home in Omaha, Neb.

Slyly smiling at a news report predicting former Governor Paul V. McNutt of Indiana, now American high commissioner to the Philippines, would be the Democratic standard bearer in 1940 to succeed President Roosevelt, Burke stated:

"There are at least two men I would rank above McNutt as potential candidates. John Nance Garner, the Vice-President and one of the greatest men in the administration today, is one.

"The other is Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, a great name, capable and studious. Watch this young man in 1940.

"But you can be sure of one thing—the Democrats won't nominate Governor Earle of Pennsylvania."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Marjorie McBride

Being a police officer is no longer an unusual job for a woman, but being an expert attached to the lost and stolen property division is. Margaret McHugh, Boston policewoman, is one of the few. She has been at it for six years.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

A large part of her job is checking over the day's records of pawnbrokers and second hand stores against the lost and stolen lists of the regular police. If it interests you there are 78 pawnshops in the city and 300 second-hand stores. That's excluding back-alley "fences" who don't register or record, although Miss McHugh hopes and believes there are few if any professionals in town. Most of the stolen articles pawned are rings and watches. Following and in that order come clothing, tools, radios and not a few typewriters. Police suspect a lot of stolen goods that are marked so it is difficult to market them are sent out to other cities and tampered with.

Stolen Property Valued At $81,000 Is Recovered

Last year the stolen property division headed by the competent and matter-of-fact Lieutenant Cornelius Ring recovered more than $81,000 worth of stolen property. The department has its own filing system and intricate method of checking stolen articles it is possible to pawn. None-the-less they cooperate with stolen and lost and found departments all over the country. Occasionally they even get a note from London or Paris, asking them to be on the lookout for certain gems or other valuable articles.

Sometimes it takes Lieutenant Ring and Miss McHugh and their associates a year to find an article. Recently they have recovered articles taken as long ago as 1929. With it any melodrama, they keep after a case. If they don't always get their man, they frequently get the property . . . so don't be discouraged, if you've been burglarized this summer.

Mt. Hermon Ex-Head Studies at 70

Young people who wonder if the desire for knowledge for its own sake justifies itself might do worse than talk with Dr. Henry Franklin Cutler, who resigned as headmaster of Mount Hermon School in East Northfield six years ago. He is now 73.

As soon as he relinquished his scholastic duties he started double quick for Paris to take a six-year course in medicine. He has just transferred to Vienna.

He doesn't know if life will give him years enough to practise. He just always wanted to know about medicine, and took it up when he got time.

Jobs for 5000 Berry Workers Hang on Weather

"If" is a mighty big word just now among the cranberry growers and pickers on Cape Cod. "If" there is enough rain, and "if" the half dozen berry diseases and the 75 or 80 insect pests which destroy the fruit are warded off, the growers look for the biggest crop in history . . . something like 500,000 barrels.

There are about 5000 regular berry pickers, and they're mostly all natives of the Cape Verde Islands or their descendants. The berry picking in the fall is not only an opportunity to pick up a little money, but a chance to renew old acquaintances with friends and relatives from [illegible]."

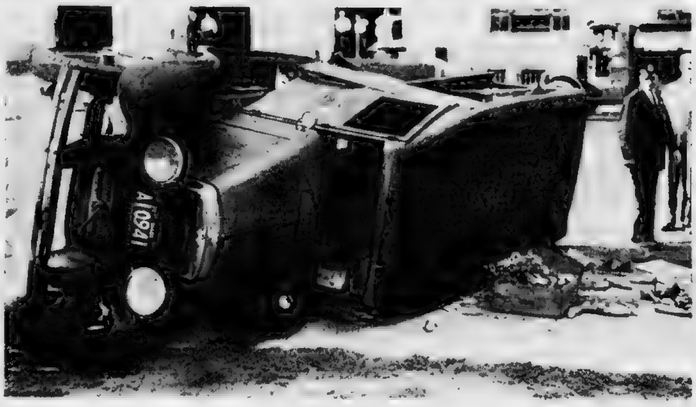
This is something the advertising managers shouldn't miss. It is a letter to the Boston Evening American from Robert F. Sellar, president of the Animal Rescue League of Boston. Mr. Sellar writes:

"It would be a worth while service if you would suggest an advertisement in the metropolitan dailies whenever a pet goes astray. Such an advertisement would be a distinct service to the Animal Rescue League in restoring lost animals to their owners. Many such requests come to us daily.

When a dog or cat is lost, the owner, if residing outside of Boston, advertises in a local paper. This is fine if the animal remains close by, but many strays are brought into Boston and the local advertisement immediately loses its force."

Mr. Goodwin! Did You See This Crash?



The Motor Vehicle Registry, always interested in the cause and effect of highway accidents, had a closeup of this one which happened in front of the registry building, Nashua street, today. Two men were slightly hurt when this truck collided with another machine and overturned, spilling into the street a delectable vegetable salad of cucumbers, tomatoes and lettuce.

Mother-Daughter Races Feature Program on Burrage Estate

By BETTY ALDEN

DIGNITY IS SUPPOSED to be one of the necessary social attributes . . . yet North Shore mothers and daughters and sons have a marvelous time forgetting it at the annual field day and gymkhana for Ascension Memorial Church in Ipswich . . .

One of the most popular and hilarious features of this big outdoor "open house," held on the spacious polo field at Candlewood Farm, the Albert C. Burrage estate in Ipswich, is the mother and children's three-legged relay race . . .

PRISCILLA THORNDIKE

Various mothers . . . whom we know as committee chairmen for prominent charity affairs, bejewelled occupants of opera boxes or gracious hostesses at the tea table . . . line up at the starting point and have one of their legs tied to the leg of their fleetest offspring . . . At the word "go" they start out on their wild and wobbly way . . . each in her own original and eccentric fashion . . . and it is not at all uncommon for a mother and daughter to get a little bit crossed up in timing, start off in different directions and both fall in a heap . . . All this is, of course, much to the amusement of friends and relatives . . . including younger children, husbands and fathers, and even grandparents who gather on the sidelines to watch the fun . . .

Yesterday afternoon at the gymkhana, Mrs. Joseph W. Woods had a lot of difficulty adjusting her long stride to the tiny steps of her young son but they managed to make a pretty good showing in the race, nevertheless . . . In spite of the fact that the affair was held on their estate, and they were virtually hostesses with lots to do and think about, Mrs. Burrage and her daughters, Cynthia and Nancy, seemed to sweep the field in the mother and daughter contests . . .

Mrs. Sumner Pingree and one of her adorable little sons attempted a less complicated relay race . . . and Mrs. Roger Warner was a good sport and teamed up with a niece to try her luck at running . . .

Summer Colonists Flock to Fete

IN THE MANNER of all A-1 outdoor fairs, there were tents full of tempting things to buy . . . pony rides . . . grabs and a fortune teller . . . there was also a dog show which captivated the interest of the crowd for nearly an hour while pets of many prominent North Shore households were put through a grilling obedience test . . . Miss Katherine Lane, the well-known Boston sculptress, was the judge, and awarded first prize to Joan Griess' famous white poodle, which has such a long and complicated title that he is known as "Ted" for short . . .

There were hundreds of fashionable summer colonists present . . . among them Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird with their daughter, Diana . . . Mrs. Francis P. Sears, who took a couple of tries at hammering a heavy nail into a sturdy board with three strokes, and then gave up for fear she would "hit someone in the eye" as she said . . . Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Woods, Sr., were present to see what a good job their son had done in arranging and planning the midway . . . Bayard Tuckerman and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Sr., chatted with numerous old friends like Major James Appleton, Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, Mrs. John Saltonstall, Mrs. G. Colket Caner, Mrs. Augustus Goodwin and Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Shaw McKean, whose youngsters won rounds of applause for their performances in the horseback riding relay races . . .

Others sharing the fun were Mrs. Edward Buxton and her two sisters, Persis and Elizabeth Mason, Ellen Moseley and her mother, Mrs. Ben P. P. Moseley, Priscilla Thorndike, Miss Alice Thorndike, Miss Mary Curtis, Mrs. T. Dennie Boardman and Mrs. Nelson Aldrich . . .

Smart Luncheon at Osterville

ONE OF THE GAYEST daytime parties on Cape Cod this week was the luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the Cape Cod Institute of Music in Osterville . . . the Institute, which is devoted to the arts . . . painting, music and dancing . . . is just in its infancy, but already has appealed to numerous debs and their mothers as just the place to catch up on their talents during the leisurely summer months . . .

Invitations to the luncheon were sent out by a group of society women including Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell, Mrs. Conway Sawyer, Mrs. Charles Ayling and Miss Martha Atwood . . . most of whom have enjoyed the hospitality of the William Lindsays, in the days when they presided over their beautiful Osterville estate where the institute is now held . . . Boston society has seen little of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay since they sold their mansion on Bay State road to Oakes Ames and took up residence in London . . .

Check Pupil's Health in Summer

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

THOUSANDS AND thousands of school children are now on their summer vacations. They are pleased to be free from the daily routine of the schoolroom.

But the parents must not forget that this is the time of the year when the child should receive a complete physical examination.

I urge this, not alone for the physical welfare of the child. It is a well known fact that many a poor school report is caused by something besides lack of intelligence on the part of the youngster. It may be influenced largely by certain physical defects. For example many children suffer from undernourishment and malnutrition and, in consequence, are prevented from making normal mental progress.

BALANCED DIET VITAL

It is an astonishing fact that many children with marked signs of malnutrition come from homes that can readily afford an abundance of good food. The trouble with such children is that they eat too much candy, pastry and other non-essential foods between meals and, of course, have no appetite at table for the really important foods. The necessity for a well-balanced varied diet cannot be overstated.

In addition to the state of his nutrition, the child's sight and hearing should be tested. Often the child with poor sight has difficulty in his work and may be totally unable to see what the teacher writes on the blackboard. His failure to progress is too often attributed to laziness, indifference and inattention, when, as a matter of fact, there is a physical foundation for the whole trouble.

Impairment in the hearing makes it difficult for the child to hear what the teacher has to say.

When the defect is overlooked, it will be seen how such a handicap quickly lands the child in the backward group.

Once these defects are recognized and the necessary measures taken to overcome them, the child's work immediately improves.

This is the time of year for the removal of large and diseased tonsils.

Miss Thomas Is Bride

Mrs. Edmund P. Cassell of P[illegible]dence has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Audrey Lucille Thomas, who is well known in Boston horse show circles, to William Lea Taylor of Memphis, Tenn., son of Mrs. R. L. Taylor and the late Mr. Taylor. The wedding took place on the anniversary of the marriage of the bride's parents. Only the immediate families attended the ceremony, which was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother in Memphis.

The bride attended the Finch School and made her debut in New York in 1935. She is the owner of the show horse stable known as the Audrey's Choice Stables. Mr. Taylor is a graduate of Princeton and is a member of the Memphis Country Club, the Memphis University Club and was formerly a member of the exclusive Men's Dinner Club. He also owns a stable of show horses.

Adamowskis Entertain

Mr. and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski of Boston are taking a very active part in the summer affairs at Bar Harbor, Me., where they are occupying their Primrose cottage.

Monday evening they played host to a dinner at Primrose cottage and next afternoon attended a violin recital given by Miss Margaret Sittig at Bide-a-While, the Bar Harbor home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Marburg of Washington. That evening the Adamowskis were guests at a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. William McNair of New York in honor of Mrs. Henry Morgan Tilford of Tuxedo Park.

Stout-Downey Ceremony Planned in Charlestown

Pre-nuptial parties are alternating with elaborate church ceremonies in [illegible] diversion for the next two months. In fact, September and October seem to be outstripping June as the favorite season of brides.

Stout-Downey nuptials at which [illegible] Virginia Downey, of Charlestown becomes the bride of Frank Stout of Milton next Wednesday morning in St. Mary's Church in Charlestown, rings up the curtain on the autumnal procession of brides.

SISTER A BRIDESMAID

Bishop Joseph Doran, former president of Holy Cross College, will perform the 10 o'clock ceremony and Monsignor Francis Burke will officiate at the nuptial mass which follows.

Virginia's sister, Isabel, will be her only attendant. Frank has chosen Dr. Joseph O'Brien of Dorchester as his best man. Ushers will include Edmund Fanning of Norwich, Ct., a classmate of his at Holy Cross, and Mark Gallagher of Medford.

Wednesday's ceremony brings to a close the merry-go-round of parties which has been honoring the popular bride-elect. Virginia's future sister-in-law, Helena Stout of Milton, who recently retired as president of the Proparvulis Club, was hostess at a gay shower and tea at her summer home in Falmouth.

HEADS POURERS

Mrs. Mary Gitto, aunt of the future Mrs. Stout, headed the group of pourers. Among the guests were Gertrude and Mary McManus, Mary and Doris Cahill, Dorothy Martin, Catherine Boyd and Gertrude and Margaret Burke.

Mrs. James Hoy's home in Hull was the setting for another jolly party when she entertained recently at a tea. Honoring the bride-to-be were Mrs. Carl Gallagher, Mrs. Edward Toomey, Mrs. Edmund Ryan, Louise Dolan, Mrs. Frank Roberts, Mrs. John R. Barry, Mrs. Richard Day, Mrs. Anna Murray and Teresa Rennason.

Hating Husband's Mother Ruins Happy Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Why do so many wives do everything in their power to alienate sons from good mothers?"

Thousands of readers, I honestly believe, have asked me that question.

The answer is simple. Because the sons are too weak-minded and afraid of their wives to [illegible] to these possessive women. That's the trouble in a nutshell.

The best cure? It's simple too. Let the jealous wives face the fact that other women will be unreasonably envious of them some day. And those other women will be their future daughters-in-law, the girls their sons will marry.

But such fear is what every jealous wife needs.

It's my sincere hope that all readers will give these remarks serious consideration. I especially recommend them to the Winchester man who writes:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

[illegible] of my mother's death. One year ago today I just managed to get to my old home in time for her funeral. I had not seen my mother for several years.

I hate to be like Father Adam casting blame on the woman, but my wife's absurd and almost pathological jealousy of my mother made me give in to her possessiveness for peace's sake.

My mother had done everything for me, even refusing to marry a very good man because I disliked the idea of a stepfather.

She [illegible] and was found dead one morning of heart disease [illegible] [illegible]

Why [illegible] his wife and his mother are as far apart as the Poles.

REM[illegible]

SHOULD SHE ACCEPT?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The man in question has been married eight years and [illegible] children. He hasn't lived with his family for four years [illegible]

He [illegible] wife doesn't know where he is and for that reason [illegible] papers.

This man, whom I will call "Jim," and who is 35 years of age, adores a girl, Ann, who is 18. She holds back because he is married and because of her fear of ridicule by her friends. Jim's friends are married and past 30 and Ann's are all under 25.

[illegible] Ann [illegible] presents. If he sees her talking [illegible] he gets angry and wants to know what was said. Ann resents this very much but doesn't complain. He has given her presents.

Is it right for her to accept them?

ANN'S FRIEND.

DEAR READER:

From what you've told me about the married man [illegible]

RKO Boston Ready for Opening

An extensive program of renovating and redecorating is now going on at the RKO Boston Theater preparatory to the resumption of stage shows with the "Hollywood Hotel Revue of 1938" on Thursday, September 2.

Although the theater was thoroughly renovated from orchestra floor to auditorium ceiling last season, a large staff of artisans are currently engaged in freshening up decorations and putting furnishings and appointments in first class condition.

Mechanically, the renovations include the installation of the latest type of stage lighting equipment, the building of an entire new and enlarged stage with all modern innovations, and an entire new set of projection spotlights to enhance the scenic effects of stage production. To provide added comfort for patrons the newest type of seat is being installed in the loges and boxes.

HAVE YOU HEARD ABOUT TOPPER?

AFTER months of secrecy, M-G-M revealed at a coast preview its amazing comedy "TOPPER"! The reception was sensational. Nothing like it ever before! . . . Why the secrecy? Because M-G-M (often first with new ideas) now brings to the screen things you have never witnessed before in unbelievable tricks of the camera that are screamingly funny. These tricks are used to tell the story (from the best-selling novel by Thorne Smith) of a gay romantic young couple (Constance Bennett and Cary Grant) who decide to change the dull life of a banker henpecked by his wife (Roland Young and Billie Burke) and show him it's fun to be alive, fun to flirt and dance and go gay!

This picture is a sure-fire cure for the blues! It's a worry-destroyer! You'll go out of the theatre feeling like painting the town (if you've got enough strength left after your laughing spree). And while you're chuckling, you'll wonder how it was possible for the camera to do those tricks! We don't know (the producers won't tell!). But we do know that this is one of the finest all 'round entertainments we have ever put on our screen—and we're positive you'll thank us for telling you!

And Cary Grant—handsomer than ever—as her romantic, but play boy husband

Radioland Reflections

By N. F. T.

THERE won't be any fight tonight, when Tommy Farr was supposed to meet Joe Louis. There won't, of course, be need for a broadcast, so I'm thinking it's about time this opening column paragraph treated Station WCOP to some deserving complimentary comment.

There's good reason for saying a good word for the small Hub station, meaning small only as compared to the big broadcasting establishments locally. Today marks the second anniversary of WCOP existence on the air hereabouts. As the boss man there named Gerard Slattery says, long may it wave.

It's justifiable to say that WCOP has worked itself into the broadcasting scheme of things well during the pair of years it has been wafting things through these thickets. As a birthday observance special permission has been granted by the Washington [illegible] for WCOP to stay in the swim throughout the evening tonight. Usually the [illegible] but this is what the oratorical speech makers term an auspicious occasion.

"N. F. T."

During the course of the day's doings dialers will hear WCOP hard at it picking up street scenes, interviews with the sidewalk pedestrians in various sections of the city, plus "mike" presentations of notables invited to be guests at the Copley-Plaza studios.

It's a big time for the baby station of Boston. Methinks if as much progress is made in two years to come as has been written into the records of the two since the beginning, Boston will have ample reason to be proud of WCOP as a broadcasting station worthy of the patronage it enjoys.

Favorite pastime of theatrical folk at a party is giving impersonations of other famous people. Tonight after 11 o'clock (WNAC) when Ina Claire makes her initial appearance at the Music Hall she will do a number of impersonations of well known individuals.

This is the first time Miss Claire has gone "informal" on the radio.

Other guests due to be with Bob Burns at the broadcast are Brian Aherne of the movies, and Helen Jepson, recently of the Metropolitan Opera, and more recently still of the movies.

Charles Kullmann, tenor, now in Hollywood for his role in the forthcoming "Goldwyn Follies," will be the guest of Cap'n Henry (Charles Winninger) aboard the "Show Boat" this evening (WNAC) from 9 to 10 o'clock.

Title Bout Doesn't Appeal to 'Specs' | Farr Gets $70,000; Louis 42½ Per Cent.

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston

NEW YORK, AUG. 26—MIKE JACOBS OF THE Twentieth Century Club would probably be elated to hear the speculators were going to reap a financial harvest in connection with Monday's bout between Joe Louis and Tommy Farr. Such a happening would denote a great deal of public interest in the title skirmish at the Yankee stadium.

Broadway's ticket agencies have not made any effort to secure choice seats for tonight's tussle. They felt the show was never very hot, and their customers refused to pay more than the regulation box office price for choice ringside pews.

The ticket speculators got burned very badly at the Louis-Braddock bout in Chicago. They felt the championship contest would draw a million dollars, and that there would be a wild scramble for seats on account of the limited seating capacity of Comiskey Park. So they loaded up on $27 ringside seats for which they paid $40 per copy. They planned to hand on these tickets to a frantic public at $50 each.

I met one of these ticket speculators the day before the Louis-Braddock bout. He was standing in front of the Morrison Hotel with a [illegible] of ringside tickets for which he paid $40 each sticking out of his [illegible].

"Do you wish to buy any ringside seats?" asked the ticket speculator.

"Where are your seats and what is your asking price?" I queried.

"They're in the fifth row ringside, and you can have them at the box office price of $27," was the quick reply.

I gave the ticket speculator some hope by saying I might look him [illegible].

The day of the bout the speculators were glad to sell ringside seats [illegible] had cost them $40 each for $15 and $20.

This burning may explain why the ticket agencies along Broadway [illegible] the Louis-Farr bout the chill from the start.

Monday's show will gross $3[illegible],000 according to Mike Jacobs. This [illegible] mean a net gate of $250,000.

Farr will pull down a guarantee of $70,000 while Louis will receive 42½ per cent of the receipts. When Mike Jacobs gives 10 per cent for rental of the ball park, pays off his preliminary boxers and other expenses, he will not have much left for himself.

* * *

Louis-Schmeling Will Be Winner

Mike Jacobs will be at the ringside rooting for Joe Louis to win. This will not be because Mike cares any more for Joe than he does for Tommy Farr. Louis is his box office attraction, and Mike knows that a tussle between the champion and Max Schmeling will draw a million dollar gate.

There was some talk of delaying [illegible] Louis-Schmeling bout until [illegible] June but with this tussle [illegible] a financial failure the heat is [illegible] to have the champion clash with Der Max the later part of next month or early in October. Philadelphia and Chicago are each [illegible] locations for the bout. New York is out on account of the strong anti-Nazi feeling that exists here.

Schmeling has agreed to battle [illegible] per cent of the gate which [illegible] leave [illegible] per cent for Louis [illegible] receive [illegible] per cent [illegible] Schmeling [illegible] wanted [illegible] per cent which made him look [illegible]. After all Louis is [illegible] even though he was knocked out by Schmeling a year ago last June. To the champion belongs the spoils in boxing as in most other things.

The thought of getting $400,000 as his end of the Schmeling bout has made Louis anxious to meet the German heavyweight. Louis is frank in stating he has not any particular love for the boxing game and that he will retire as soon as he makes enough money to keep his family and himself in luxury.

Mike Jacobs and the Louis management don't chime in with Joe when he talks retirement. They talk about having him defend his title four times a year.

Jacobs is hopeful that when Louis loses it will be to a young American heavyweight who has oozles of color. Mike isn't very hot for Max Schmeling as the latter has always given him plenty of headaches in the making of matches. While Joe Jacobs is out front as Schmeling's manager, Max is his own boss. He has left Joe Jacobs waiting in an outside office while he has talked business with Mike Jacobs behind closed doors.

* * *

Joe Jacobs Gets Only 10 Per Cent.

Joe Jacobs receives only 10 per cent of Schmeling's money. Billy McCarney, Pete Reilly and others who from time to time have been connected with the Schmeling management have been washed out.

Max tells me he has moved all of his money into Germany. He formerly kept his bank deposit in Switzerland as was true of many other wealthy Germans.

"I have my cash on deposit in German government banks," Der Max told me.

Hitler insists on this condition. If Schmeling refused to keep his money in German government banks it is likely that his real estate in Hamburg would be confiscated by the government.

Schmeling has made a fortune in real estate investments. He told me he invested much of the money he received in his two bouts with Jack Sharkey in apartment properties in Hamburg.

The funniest boxing story of the year would be a Farr victory over Louis Monday. It would knock Schmeling as well as Mike Jacobs for a loop. The boxing game has had its share of startling upsets, but I don't believe Farr will furnish one at the Yankee Stadium. Louis' punch should decide the battle in his favor, and save the million dollar gate in the proposed Louis-Schmeling bout for Mike Jacobs and the rival boxers as well as their noble managers.

Hearst Stars Play at 'Burr'

Tune Up for Title Play Monday

By BILL GRIMES

During the two-day Sandy Burr Country Club annual open handicap medal play tournaments, which will start tomorrow, there will be more than the usual number of out-of-state golfers in the field.

The fifth William Randolph Hearst New England junior championship will be played at Sandy Burr on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Sam Neild, Jr., Pawtucket, the 1936 Hearst champion, will be one of the few out-of-staters unable to play in the Sandy Burr open. He is to play in the mixed foursome championship at the Agawam Hunt Club with Cynthia Richardson, Highland, and if they go through as they did last year, Sam will not be able to get in a practice round prior to the Hearst.

Patrick O'Neil Hayes possesses a thorough working knowledge of Sandy Burr, but he'll be at Wayland either tomorrow or Saturday with his pal, Francis X. Harrington, another Newporter, who has never played "The Burr."

[illegible] Patterson and his fellow [illegible] Green will be at Sandy Burr on Saturday, as will Johnny Mallaghan, from the Providence "Munie," who was the runner-up with Patterson in the Rhode Island junior championship.

Harvey Goodman who hails from Lebanon, N. H., and is a member of the Carter Country Club, is due in town today, and he'll positively play in the Sandy Burr open. The Leonard brothers, Tommy, Jr., and Dick, and Dick Ryan, from the Nashua Country Club, Warren Tibbetts and Charlie Scribner and in all probability, Bob Fallon, from Concord, will be the other New Hampshirites at "The Burr" during the open.

Edward L. Abbott, who'll be the Lone Pine Tree State contender for the Hearst, is expected to arrive in town on Saturday from Auburn, and he'll make his debut in Massachusetts open competition.

All of the out-of-state juniors who will play in the Hearst are fine medal players. Sam Neild, Jr., Tommy Leonard, Jr., Charlie Scribner and Eddie Abbott all qualified in the New England amateur championship at Ekwanok.

Along with the out-of-state Hearst contenders, there'll be any number of Massachusetts juniors tuning up at "The Burr" tomorrow and Saturday.

Johnny McNiff, the state junior titleholder, Gerald Anderson, Green Hill, Henry S. Thompson, Jr., Concord, Johnny McCann and Donald [illegible] Brook, [illegible] Davis and Frank Pruell, Walpole, Leonard Curran, and Forrest Daniels, Jr., of the home club, and Francis T. Galvin, Brae Burn, will assure themselves of an extra practise round by playing the Sandy Burr open.

North Shore Roots for Johnny McNiff

There are 64 junior golf standouts with one ambition and 63 of them are going to be disappointed.

These stars of golfdom are all aiming for the great Hearst New England junior golf championships which get underway at Sandy Burr.

Each section is rooting for its pride to come through, and along the North Shore the choice is Johnny McNiff.

Out at the Salem Country Club where Johnny makes his rounds daily brushing up on every shot in the book, the caddies who have followed the fortunes of their champion feel that McNiff will be able to overcome the brilliant field to take the title.

Johnny is quite as optimistic. When asked how he felt about winning, he chirped:

"Boy, it's a tough field. I beat several good players in winning the state junior championship last week but I didn't have to face the crowd from out of state and from what I understand everyone of these boys coming in is really good.

Johnny's supporters base their optimism on the fact that he has plenty of courage and is very consistent. He never comes up with any sensational sub-par rounds, but on the other hand he never goes to pieces.

Last year Johnny entered the Hearst and won the medal play. Friends advised him to enter the National amateur and he withdraw to compete against the nation's best. He naturally lacked the experience to compete with veterans and just failed to qualify.

This year he is gunning for the Hearst only and wants that title more than any other honor he has ever won.

"At present," says Johnny, "I want to be a lawyer and am going to Suffolk Law School nights. But, if I find that I am really going to have a future in golf and show real improvement, I may consider staying with the game."

RAIN HALTS TITLE FIGHT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
BOSTON, THURSDAY, AUGUST 26, 1937

AUSTEN LAKE

Lucky Haymaker
Farr's Hope
Against Louis

New York, Aug. 26.

ALONG THE HARDENED ASPHALT ARTERY called Broadway at least 50,000 fight addicts are trying to tell Tommy Farr how to handle Joe Louis in Monday's sticking at the Yankee abbatoir. Even Jimmy Braddock, the emeritus champion who displayed nothing more than an unconquerable soul, an arthritic punch and one whistling uppercut, is lifting his voice in the general cricket clamor.

AUSTEN LAKE

For Jimmy insists that his one, ruinous mistake last June was standing-in and matching haymakers with the whiskey-tinted Negro. If he had it to do again, he said today in the vestibule of Mike Jacobs' upstairs suite, he would retreat in a slow circling shuffle, staying tactfully at the limit of Louis's reach and lunging in with quick, milling flurries.

No man, says Braddock, can match Louis in straight, stand-up punching or the mixed arts of sock-and-block. Farr's only chance, he said, is to back peddle slowly, biding time until the Negro overreaches himself and then leaping in with looping, overhand hooks and maybe a sharp uppercut. "Like the one I landed in Chicago," said J. J. wistfully.

Yes, that had been a good punch, a six-inch jolt in a tangle of arms and elbows that had spun Louis on his purple tights. "A little more of that 'Ugh,'" said James, demonstrating on raised heels, "and there he goes . . ."

It was a rosy, but futile, dream.

* * *

How to Lick Louis?

THE CURIOUS THING ABOUT MOST of the fighters who have faced Louis is that they profess to know the correct method of licking him before the fight and afterward, but, excepting only Max Schmeling, never during the evening's jollity in the ring.

So, let Farr examine the system employed by Louis's major opponents and take his choice.

Carnera stood solidly on his violin-case feet, with his long arms outstretched like a pair of hatrack hooks, trying to club his man down by sheer strength and finally breaking into a backward gallop with a crimson beard dribbling from his chin and pop-eyed hysteria in his eyes.

Baer, for all his advance braggadoccio, hid in a nest of elbows, faking an occasional feeble punch and walking backward in jerky circles until he simulated a wideawake swoon. Baer, the erstwhile "killer" was plainly scared.

Schmeling stood his ground with his right tucked under [illegible] and his eyes purpling with repeated stabs until he fired a long range punch born of desperation that rendered Louis rubber-legged. And though Max hit him repeatedly after that, it was the initial belt that did the business.

Sharkey, an antiquated hulk, tossed a few clumsy swipes before being herded into the ring corner and having his jowls rocked between alternate rights and lefts.

Pastor ran away for 10 rounds like a college halfback threading a broken field.

* * *

Joe's Achilles Heel

I DOUBT THAT FARR WILL FIND ANYTHING useful in any of Louis' previous fights, or, indeed, that he can discover any new tactic that has not been previously tried. The safest and most inglorious, was Pastor's policy of flea-hopping.

But, if he means to fight, his best chance is to fan Louis as though swatting a swarm of hornets, keeping up the terrific pace while life and intelligence lasts and always hoping that at least one asphixiating haymaker will hit Joe's slack jaw, and if it does tag it has enough paralyzing effect to send him sleep walking. The penalty for failure is quick exhaustion and merciful unconsciousness.

For, indeed, Louis fights with a relaxed and sagging chin, with his teeth apart and giving him that slope jawed, prognathous effect. I have heard Jack Blackburn talk about it furtively with John Roxborough and undoubtedly has coached his man to keep his teeth in a shock-proof clinch. But, up to the Braddock fight, at least, Joe had not mastered the habit.

Only two fighters have landed solid busts on Joe's jaw and each time he went down. So that Farr's one forlorn chance, seems to be a full round house wallop guided by Lady Luck directly to Joe's jackpot. It's like playing for the Big Casino.

* * *

Fiasco or Brawl?

ONE THING MAY FAVOR FARR. He is an unorthodox, alley type of scrapper who doesn't conform to usual gymnasium form. His slam-bang style is essentially the same as that learned in the Tonypandy mines of Wales, where rhythm, timing and muscular flow was secondary to a wild sock in the puss. The scarred seams from surgical sewing on his eyes, nose and mouth, and his dried apricot ears, tell a history of accepting a ratio of savagery to inflict a greater share of damage. Louis may be puzzled.

The issue Monday should be one of how long Tommy's nerve centers can stand a repetitious hammering and how long his facial hide can weather stabbing and hacking from six-ounce, skin-tight mittens—that is, if he fights. Because he may decide to run away and enjoy the doubtful distinction of being the man "whom Louis could not knock out." That might have some box-office value in London.

Whatever happens, runaway fiasco or sanguinary brawl, there will be one man at the ringside who won't like it. That is Max Schmeling, the ghost-fighting German, who claims that it should be his name on the end of the announcer's salutation, "Introducing the wurrrld's champeeen . . ." Max will be merely another pin-point face in the human carpet, a momentary nonentity.

The world champion whom he knocked out will be the center of attention.

MELILLO May Lead BROWNS

TAYLOR HAS $100,000

By Associated Press

Did the Giants take some of the starch out of the Cubs' sails.

Seems the U. of Florida beat South Carolina to those football dugouts by about eight years.

Joe Jacobs, local little manager of Max Schmeling, isn't exactly in what the boys call "the chips," but he bought 28 ringside seats for Farr and Louis to pass around among guys who have done him favors in the last year.

Who do you like, boys—Louis or Farr? Write your own ticket.

Judge Jeremiah Mahoney (one of the New York mayoralty candidates) will make no speeches tonight. He called 'em all off to go see Farr and Louis.

Spec Towns Wins Horse Race

Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 26 (AP)—Forrest "Spec" Towns, Olympic hurdles champion, defeated a cavalry horse in 120 yards of timber topping and a 100-yard dash at nearby Fort Oglethorpe today.

The horse, Tommy Roberts, was ridden by Private John Henry.

The turf, soggy from rain, Towns trimmed Tommy Roberts by a nose in 13 seconds at the hurdles.

He finished first in the dash in ten seconds.

The races were arranged for the entertainment of the Fort Oglethorpe C. M. T. C. students, in which Towns is enrolled.

Square-Riggers on Long Jaunt

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26 (AP) — Two representatives of an era long dead today took the center of a marine stage vacated only yesterday by five of the most modern sailing craft in the world.

Matched in a 660-mile sailing duel to Bermuda were the square-rigged yachts Seven Seas, owned by William Gubelmann, multimillionaire inventor, and the Joseph Conrad, owned by H. Huntington Hartford, chain store magnate.

Yesterday, in very light air, Harold S. Vanderbilt's record defender of the America's cup, Ranger, called the fastest "J" boat ever built, trounced four other members of that class, including two British, by more than 21 minutes, the widest margin of victory of the season.

She led T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II, his second unsuccessful challenger; Chandler Hovey's Rainbow, Vanderbilt's 1934 defender; Gerard B. Lambert's Yankee, which thrice failed to win defense nomination, and Endeavour I, Sopwith's 1934 challenger, all the way around a [illegible] the City of New [illegible] the K[illegible] and the [illegible].

CLASH Takes Place MONDAY

ADVANCE SALE VERY POOR

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, Aug. 26 (INS) — Shortly after Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis and Tommy Farr had weighed in today for their 15-round title fight scheduled tonight, Promoter Mike Jacobs announued that, because of threatening weather, a postponement until Monday night had been decided on.

Promoter Jacobs would not say at once what effect the postponement into next week might have on lagging ticket sales. Some observers held to the opinion that with the additional four days, the crowd of 30,000 which was expected to pour into Yankee Stadium tonight might be swelled by a few thousands.

The fighters and their handlers left the commission meeting to head back to their camps, Louis to Pompton Lakes, N. J., and Farr to Long Branch, N. J., each to workout lightly until finally they meet.

Neither showed any reaction to the delay—which seemed likely as early as yesterday and which they [illegible] expected.

FIGHTERS APPEAR

Intermittent showers which finally gave way to a murky fog—with still more rain threatening—brought about the postponement immediately after noon with virtually all pre-fight formalities completed.

Appearing before the boxing commission for the last minute examination and official weight taking, Louis was right at the weight he had announced he would carry into the ring, 198 pounds. Farr, at 20[illegible], was about three pounds over what he had expected to scale.

Anyhow, they got it as soon as Promoter Jacobs read the weather reports calling for more rain tonight and Friday and he decided to shove the fight. Farr [illegible] back to miss the weather.

Today's formalities before the commission will have to be repeated Monday, Chairman John J. Phelan notified the fighters. Despite a mild protest from John Roxborough and Julian Black, Louis handlers, Chairman Phelan said the rules provide for a second examination and weighing-in on any fight postponed more than 48 hours.

BOTH FIT

Dr. William G. Walker, commission physician, pronounced both the Negro champion and the Welsh challenger in perfect condition today and added:

"Farr actually seems to be the calmest of the two—in contrast to most of Louis' previous opponents. Farr shows no reaction to the impending fight."

Louis' pulse was 63 before and [illegible] after exercising and Farr's was [illegible] before and 85 after.

Chairman Phelan revealed in the midst of the confusion which customarily attends these pre-fight get-togethers that the commission would go into a session shortly, but did not reveal its significance.

Larry Kelley in Headlines Again

Philadelphia, Aug. 26 (AP)—Larry Kelley, who did a lot of kidding while playing end for Yale last football season, has been kidded into growing—imagine—a beard and mustache!

He arrived from Europe yesterday and for a moment his mother, father and sister from Williamsport, Pa., failed to recognize their son and brother who won Yale letters at football, basketball and baseball.

"I played touch football in Munich," explained Kelley. "All the Germans there seemed to have beards. Some of them told me I couldn't grow one myself so I raised this baby just to make them jealous. A beauty, eh what?"

BUCK'S Face Turns RED

BOB FELLER FANS 16 SOX

Detroit, Aug. 26—Was Louis "Buck" Newsom's face red when the Red Sox arrived here today for a three-game series with the Tigers?

"Buck," you know, is quite a radio commentator. He goes on the air in almost every city the Sox visit to express his views on the National pastime in his own, inimitable style.

And one of his favorite topics all this season has been Bob Feller, Cleveland's boy pitching phenom.

"Buck" told his listeners that Feller's trouble wasn't so much a sore arm as it was inexperience. He insisted that the Van Meter meteor would never be a big league star until he spent a season or two in the minors learning how to pitch.

16 STRIKE OUTS

Well, over in Cleveland yesterday "Buck" stepped out to pitch the first game of a doubleheader for the Sox. And the Indians chased out Mr. Feller.

The rest you must have heard about.

Anyway, all the kid that "needed experience" did was strike out 16 of the Croninmen while holding them to four hits, while his mates knocked Newsom from the peak and went on to win, 8 to 1.

The [illegible] Jimmy Foxx [illegible] Gene Desautels three times [illegible] and [illegible] McNair on a third strike twice. Dominic Dallessandro was No. 16 as Feller came within [illegible] of equaling the major league strike out record which he holds along with Dizzy Dean.

Sea Biscuit May Race War Admiral on Coast

Kyne interpreted S. D. Riddle's reply to mean the fitness of his three-year-old champion was all that was delaying his definite acceptance of the offer. C. S. Howard, owner of Seabiscuit, is anxious for the race.

Reports from Saratoga, where War Admiral has been [illegible] back in training, indicated the Kentucky Derby winner is rapidly recovering from his foot injury and will [illegible] ready [illegible] have [illegible] the [illegible] within two or three weeks.

Root World's Wonder Says Cubs' Manager

RATES HERMAN OVER FRISCH

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—Charlie Grimm, boss and chief jester of the pennant pursuing Chicago Cubs, always does his best talking in his underwear. So I arrived early, and then ran him through the gauntlet of a candid interview.

[illegible]

Q. Can the Cubs [illegible]

A. If we [illegible] Don't forget we [illegible] with 21 games.

Q. Why [illegible] seven at one spell [illegible] have the Cubs been able to keep head [illegible]

A. Everybody says we've been unlucky, but I claim we've been luckier than a field of four-leaf clovers. As soon as a key man has been hurt a sub has stepped in to become a star. [illegible] we were afraid [illegible] when we lost Rip Collins [illegible] and (Phil) Cavarretta stepped [illegible] and [illegible] yards [illegible] easier. Our cripples [illegible] plenty of time to get well because their subs [illegible] I can't bench 'em.

Q. Have you heard that Bill Terry is planning to play again?

A. He is? Well so am I. After this season is over I'm going back home (St. Louis) and tee off on this season. I'll [illegible] daily and I think I can come back. How I'd love to take another swipe at the ball.

Q. [illegible] pitchers.

A. No. [illegible] jerks more than any [illegible] once drove on my farm. Charlie Root has been our life saver. He's the world's wonder. Bill Lee is dependable, too. But you never can tell what the others are liable to do. They get the dangdest streak of wildness at times. They might walk five batters in a row and then, boom! Parmalee? He's still a mystery. Not dependable. Davis is a question mark one time or an exclamation mark the next. The Giants—they really have the pitching. But Billy Herman and Billy Jurges save our skins. Those two can go and get 'em anywhere.

Q. How does Herman rate with Frank Frisch as a second baseman?

A. I think he's better than Frisch was in his heyday. Frankie hit better but Billy can go farther on each side after 'em.

Q. Why can't the Cubs do better against the Pirates?

A.—We can't seem to get Paul Waner out. Why the other day when we played there, it was so dark that you couldn't get around the infield without a lantern. But up stepped the little devil and he pasted the first pitch for a hit. The pitcher thought sure he'd look over one pitch in the darkness but he didn't. Only way you can pitch to him is under the plate.

ON MEDWICK'S HEELS

Q.—Is Waner a better hitter than Medwick?

A.—Medwick steps up and hammers the ball against or over the [illegible]

Zimmy was variously reported passing Rhinebeck, nearly half way down the river, and Kingston several miles north of there during the night, but his exact whereabouts was unknown since he left Saugerties at 8 p. m., EST.

Because the rowboat which follows closely at all times carried no lights visible from the shore it was almost an impossible task for shore watchers to check his progress. An accompanying motor boat does not stay as close to the swimmer as the rowboat.

$425,000 in Purses at Hialeah This Winter

WIDENER Cup Race for $50,000

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Announcing an increase in stake and overnight purse distribution to $425,000, Joseph E. Widener, president of the Miami Jockey Club, today made known his plans for the 46-day winter meeting at Hialeah Park, Fla. The sum offered [illegible] $75,000 more [illegible] last season.

[illegible]

Mr. Widener [illegible] "While we have increased our stake values in some instances, Hialeah's policy henceforth will be a wider distribution of the purse money to horsemen. The Widener has reached its peak value. I truly believe that racing will benefit best by making it possible for a larger number of horsemen to participate in the purse distribution rather than a few. And, with this thought in mind I am happy to announce that no purse will be less than $1000 except in two-year-old races. These will be at $800. Likewise our stakes for two-year-olds will be held at their past values, as I am thoroughly convinced that thoroughbreds of this age should not be encouraged to engage in strenuous competition so early in the year. They should be protected as much as possible during this period in order that we may have a crop of sound horses for racing in their matured years."

FETTE Opposes CUBS

GRIMM BEGINS TO WORRY

Rain today forced the Bees to postpone their opening game with the league leading Cubs at the Hive. There will be a double-header tomorrow.

By JOE CASHMAN

Vince DiMaggio, the million-dollar fielder with the billion-dollar arm and the ten-cent batting average, will wear eye glasses when he steps to the plate this afternoon as the Bees open a three-game series with the pace-setting but cracking Chicago Cubs.

After months of watching the [illegible] young Italian miss strikes [illegible] the Bees bosses [illegible]

MAY BE THE MAKINGS

If the bespectacled "DiMag" becomes a 300 hitter, the Bees will have a ball player money couldn't buy in place of a performer hanging on to the main tent by his finger tips and every humpty-dumpty hitter in the land will be rushing to have his eyes examined.

If he shows no improvement the Bees will be out [illegible] the price of a pair of glasses and the baseball world will have just so much added proof that hitters are born, never made.

The odds would seem to be against glasses helping DiMaggio. But it so happens that Vince looks like a natural hitter when he meets the ball.

So maybe his only trouble is a [illegible] which glasses will [illegible]

Everybody will be pulling for him, that's sure. His brilliant fielding and phenomenal throwing has made him such an idol that he can strike out five times an afternoon and never hear a boob from the stands. If he now starts hitting, he'll own the town.

When we say everybody will be pulling for him we except, of course, the Cubs.

They'll be pulling against him and every other Bee in sight.

[illegible] they don't quickly snap out of it they're going to lose a pennant they appeared to have [illegible] away two weeks ago.

WATCH OUT CUBS

Splitting a seven game trail a [illegible] back, they come here after dropping both ends of a doubleheader to the champion and runner up Giants and seeing their lead reduced to two games.

And the way they lost those games was even worse than the [illegible] They blew a five-run lead in the ninth inning of the opener [illegible] a lead they couldn't protect in the nightcap.

HALF MILLION EXPECTED AT LEGION MEET

Special to Boston Evening American

New York, Aug. 26—Jeremiah F. Cross, newly-elected New York State commander of the American Legion, said today that the 19th annual convention of the American Legion, to be held in New York City September 20 to 23, will be the largest assembly of legionnaires, as well as the biggest gathering of any kind ever to be held in the world.

It is estimated that the number of legionnaires, members of the auxiliary and their families will approach the half-million mark.

Commander Cross, in commenting on the Evening Journal and New York American's special American Legion section, which will be published on September 5, said:

"It is my opinion that the special American Legion section which the Evening Journal and New York American is publishing will provide legionnaires with a permanent memento of their visit to the world's largest city.

"While most of the convention highlights will be indelibly impressed on our minds, nevertheless this illustrated and descriptive souvenir edition will always revive pleasant memories of the finest reunion of American citizenship ever to be staged in America."

Complimentary copies of this edition which will contain a complete history of the American Legion, detailed information on the convention, and a comprehensive directory of restaurants and furnished rooms will be mailed any legionnaire who sends his name and address plus six cents to cover mailing costs to the convention desk, 220 South street, New York city.

Visit Home, Cruise For President

Washington, August 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt will leave tonight for a visit to Hyde Park, N. Y., and a cruise of several days on Long Island Sound.

He will take with him more than 100 bills passed in the closing days of Congress and still awaiting approval or rejection.

After staying about a week at the family home at Hyde Park, the President will board the yacht "Potomac" at Poughkeepsie for the cruise on Long Island Sound. He intends to watch the yacht races off New London if they still are being sailed at that time. The races start next Saturday, and the Cup winner Ranger and T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II are both contestants.

After several days on the sound, where he probably will indulge in his favorite sport of fishing, he will return to Hyde Park.

He is to return to Washington September 17.

The Brighter Side

Damon Runyon

It is related that when Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons met Mr. James J. Corbett years ago in an exposition of the manly art of mussing mugs, Mrs. Fitzsimmons sat at the ringside, and at a time moment, shrilled:

"Hit him in the slats, Bob!"

The "slats" in those primitive days, meant the lower ribs, and Mr. Fitzsimmons, following the wifely advice, struck Mr. Corbett there, or thereabouts, with rather dire consequences to Mr. Corbett.

The blow, which cost Mr. Corbett the heavyweight championship of the world, was afterwards somewhat loftily diagnosed by the pugilistic experts as a punch to the solar plexus. But it really was in the general vicinity of the "slats," or midway of them, where the breath hides.

A lady at the ringside today, giving advice to a pugilistic spouse, could cover about the same ground as Mrs. Fitzsimmons, and in fewer words, by merely shrieking "Downstairs." That region takes in not only the solar plexus, but the appendix and parts south.

CLARION CALL SURVIVES

However, Mrs. Fitzsimmons was the first, and last, lady related to the manly art by marriage, especially the heavyweight division, who publicly offered words of wisdom to a husband in the heat of conflict.

Her clarion call has come ringing down through fistic history, but there appears to have been no echo. The wives of most of our gladiators remain at home when their husbands fare forth to battle.

We know quite a number of wives in circles not related to the manly art who would pay a speculator's premium to be right up against the ring if you could guarantee that their husbands would receive a jolly bopping about.

But from the time of John Arthur Johnson, the first colored heavyweight champion in history, down to the present day, no wife of a heavyweight champion, nor of a contender, either, unless memory errs, has been at a title tilt.

PASTIME FOR MEN

Mr. Fitzsimmons was followed by Mr. Jeffries in the championship line, and we doubt that Mrs. Jeffries ever saw her husband in a championship bout, though we are not sure about that. We are reasonably sure, however, that Mrs. Corbett never witnessed any of her husband's fistic feats.

John Arthur Johnson had a white wife the time he fought and lost to Mr. Jess Willard in Havana. She was in a box at the ringside, and when Johnson sensed that his number was up, he sent for the late Jack Curley, who promoted the fight, and asked him to take Mrs. Johnson away from there. Johnson did not want his wife to see his finish.

SCREAMED AT KO

Curley was escorting her along one side of the ring, toward an aisle exit, when Johnson was knocked down almost in front of her. She let out a big scream, and then hurried away, the last wife of a principal in a heavyweight champion contest to view her husband's efforts.

It is a curious thing that while the wives of the gladiators have a great distaste of seeing their own husbands beat up, they do not mind seeing other wives' husbands get a good slugging.

We have observed at ringsides the wives of gladiators who would not even listen to radio accounts of their husbands' battles, apparently deriving no little pleasure in viewing serious mistreatment of other ladies' husbands. We shall not attempt to account for this.

"KILL HIM"

While Mrs. Fitzsimmons' advice has always been deemed about the best, and timeliest ever offered a gladiator by a wife, we do not believe that it is quite as complete as that which used to be given a heavyweight gladiator named King Levinsky by his sister, a lady known as "Leaping Lena."

Mr. Levinsky, a quaint character out of Chicago, where he used to be a fish peddler, was managed by his sister, who usually sat four or five rows back from the ring, because a discreet promoter would not allow her any closer. From that position, she would advise Mr. Levinsky in an exceptionally high, keen mezzo-soprano, and the tenor of her advice was,

"Kill him, King."

We do not think that anyone will deny that this advice, followed to the letter, would prove far more efficacious, as a general proposition, in a drive for victory, than the suggestion to hit them in the "slats."

HI-LI PRODUCES MORE HITS THAN BASEBALL

Here is one game in which you get more hits than baseball. It's Hi-Li.

Experts say there is no limit to the number of hits one can make in this fascinating new sport that has captured public fancy here and in many other cities of the country.

Hi-Li is played with a small wooden paddle to which is attached a rubber ball at the end of a strong elastic cord.

The object is to get as many hits as possible by striking the ball with the paddle and containuing to do so on each rebound. The number of times a good player can do this is amazing.

Sponsoring the sport, the Boston Evening American in conjunction with a number of Greater Boston theaters will award prizes of all varieties to winners in a series of elimination Hi-Li contests.

In addition, each contestant will receive a free candy bar at all contest theaters.

Today's contests are scheduled for the following theaters:

9:30 a. m.—Medford Theater, Medford.

10:30 a. m.—Waltham Theater, Waltham; Hamilton Theater, Dorchester, and Rialto Theater, Lowell.

11:30 a. m.—Watertown Theater, Watertown.

1 p. m.—Strand Theater, Haverhill.

4 p. m.—Modern Theater, Lawrence.

Tomorrow's contests will be held at the following places:

9:30 a. m.—Strand Theater, Chelsea.

10:30 a. m.—Revere Theater, Revere.

11:30 a. m.—Lincoln Theater, Quincy Point.

150 Children Sail On All-Day Outing

Approximately 150 underprivileged children from the South End were taken on a gay full-day outing to Provincetown today aboard the S. S. Steel Pier by the South End Republican Club.

The children thronged aboard the pleasure boat at Long Wharf today, to return this evening. The recent moonlight sail of the G. O. P. raised expenses for the trip.

Market's Position Critical

New York, Aug. 26 (INS)—The market situation appears to be steadily going from bad to worse with speculative attention today concerned primarily with the ability of rail issues to hold above their 1937 lows.

Announcement that wage negotiations between the railroads and operating unions had collapsed, necessitating forced mediation board hearings, unsettled the carrier group in late dealings yesterday, and touched off sympathetic selling in other sections of the list.

• • •

Rail averages are off to a new low on the current reactionary phase and less than 1½ points above their critical June support bottoms. Industrials dipped, while utilities, which had ruled firm throughout the session were 5 cents higher at the close yesterday.

Turnover dropped to another two-month low at 500,000 shares, reflecting the low state to which market interest has currently fallen.

• • •

With a few exceptions, losses in the rail group were held to fractional proportions. For some reason or other, there has been a slow improvement in sentiment toward the carrier list, despite the adverse wage set-up and the unfavorable tenor of rail earnings.

Much, however, depends on the support which develops around present price levels. Should the 1937 lows definitely hold, many quarters are confidently predicting a decided upswing in the rail division.

• • •

In other major groups, it was difficult to decipher the significance of the price changes. U. S. Steel and Chrysler, for example, started off with a show of strength, and then subsided to finish with losses of more than a point.

Radio, which was the most active stock on the board, finished exactly unchanged as sponsors found themselves unable to attract any following. Individual weakness was evidenced in Canada Dry which lost nearly 2 points, and A. O. Smith which was off nearly 3, both touching new lows for the year.

B. & O. Wage Costs

Washington, August 26—The increase of five cents an hour for the 14 craft unions recently granted by the railroads will cost the Baltimore & Ohio on the present basis of employment an estimated $3,500,000 a year, according to J. J. Ekin, Baltimore & Ohio vice-president and comptroller.

EXPORTS Cut by China FIGHT

U. S. TRADE AFFECTED

New York, Aug. 26 (AP)—The undeclared Sino-Japanese war in North China already has begun to take its toll of our trade with the Orient, reports to importers, exporters and banks indicated today.

With Shanghai a shambles as troops fight bitterly for its possession, virtually all shipments destined for that port have been halted or diverted. Imports from China have been seriously curtailed. Many orders for goods from this country have been cancelled, shippers said.

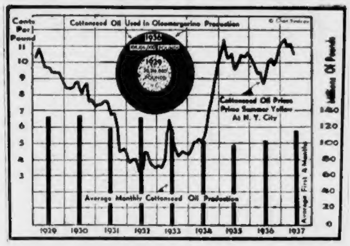
Bankers said they had been forced in many cases to cease financing of exports to north China ports, where at the present time it appears hopeless to attempt collections. Some goods consigned to Shanghai have been diverted to Singapore, where storage space is still available.

This country it was pointed out, did a total business with China and Japan last year of approximately half a billion dollars, while trade exchanges in the first six months of this year were at a better pace than last. Any continued interruption, it was felt, would deal a serious blow to American trade interests.

Shippers said that, so far, our commerce with Japan had not been affected so seriously as that with China. On the other hand it was feared should the fighting continue a month or so longer, Japan, because of a lack of foreign balances with which to buy anything but war materials, might be forced on a self-sufficiency basis which would cut down purchases in this market.

Possibility that the United States might be forced to recognize belligerency and thus bring automatically into play the amended neutrality act was considered carefully. In some quarters it was said shippers, faced by that contingency, had chartered Canadian vessels for far eastern cargoes. This would provide a lesser risk than that of losing American vessels at the shipper's peril.

Cottonseed Oil Use



An important by-product of the cotton industry is cottonseed oil. One of the large markets for cottonseed oil is in the production of oleomargarine. Last year more than 108,000,000 pounds of oil were used in the production of margarine, compared with 30,214,000 in 1929.

With the exception of 1935, average monthly production of cottonseed oil has been well over 100,000,000 pounds. For the first four months of this year production has been at the rate of 116,000,000 pounds a month.

Cottonseed oil prices in January of this year averaged 11.4 cents a pound. With the exception of February, 1935, this was the highest price since September, 1926. Following the general decline of commodity prices this spring, cottonseed oil is now quoted at about 10.5 cents a pound.

FACTORY OUTPUT

Slump Corrects Earlier Excesses

The value of factory output declined from 109.7 in May to 102.2 in June, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The value index in June, however, was still 16.2 points above the index of this year's prospective farm income which is a fundamental measuring rod of normal for the value of factory output.

This indicates a further decline in the value of factory output before the close of the year.

While some decline in prices of manufactured goods is possible, the prospect is that any further decline in the value of factory output will be chiefly the result of curtailed activity.

• • •

This curtailment would be modified if farm income proved to be larger than is now estimated. The evidence at the present time, however, indicates that farm income will be below the estimate rather than above it.

In order to equal the estimate, it would be necessary for farm income during the last half of 1937 to exceed that in the corresponding period of 1936. The report for June argued against such a development since farm income in that month was lower than a year ago.

On the basis of current estimates of farm income and the price level of manufactured goods in 1937, the index of normal factory output for the full year now works out at 97. Since the index averaged 119 during the first six months, the index during the last six months would have to drop to an average of 75 to result in the estimated annual normal index of 97.

The outlook is, however, that the prospective curtailment will be less drastic than is thus indicated since factory output promises to exceed normal this year. At the same time, it is not likely to show a greater excess than in 1936. With an excess equal to that of last year, the annual index this year would be 106, or 9 points above normal. This would allow an average index of 93 for the last six months of this year, or 19.1 per cent below the rate of activity in June.

BUMPER '37 Crops SEEN

SOYBEAN MORE IMPORTANT

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP)—A bumper 1937 yield of soybeans, estimated in private trade reports by crop experts to be in excess of 50,000,000 bushels, will place this infant member of American crops on a near equal production level with rye, one of the oldest.

Rye production this year is estimated at 52,000,000 bushels and some crop observers believe that soybeans may even pass rye this year.

From an insignificant position in the American agricultural picture a dozen years ago, the soybean, although far removed from its native Manchuria, has found favor among farmers to the extent that more than six million acres were seeded this year. Some was planted for use as a legume.

In the corn belt states farmers found soybeans suitable for substitution for oats in crop rotation programs. This aided in the rapid use of soybean acreage.

If this year's crop estimate is fulfilled the previous high yield in 1935 will be exceeded by almost six million bushels. In 1936 the yield was down to less than 30,000,000 bushels, due to drouth conditions.

Rainfall and growing conditions so far this year have been generally favorable, although some sections of Illinois, principal producing state, have suffered damage from grasshoppers and weeds.

Crop experts said today, however, that losses from these causes undoubtedly will be offset by the harvesting of beans which had been planted primarily for use as hay. Heavy yields of other legumes, they said, will make unnecessary the use of soybeans for this purpose.

Plants in the United States for processing soy beans have capacity for handling 55,000,000 bushels and processors reported this year's bumper crop can easily be absorbed by manufacturing concerns which convert the beans into more than 300 products.

Railroad Finances Studied

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Steadily mounting costs are supplying American railroads with a sound reason for seeking a general freight rate increase. Small marginal roads are already said to be agitating for more lucrative rates. Should the roads band together and ask the ICC for permission to impose higher charges, it will mean that there will be two railroad rate cases before that supervisory body.

Already an upping of rates on specific commodities is being sought. Decision on this plea is expected before fall. In the event the commission acts favorably, carriers will benefit to the extent of between 60 million and 90 million dollars annually in added revenue. Offhand, it would seem that this sum, plus the savings that will accrue to the roads through the new Retirement Act, would be sufficient to meet any rise in cost. However, it must not be forgotten that higher wages alone will come close to absorbing all the additional money so obtained. At the same time cost of materials and supplies must be taken into account.

* * *

Monthly reports of railroads supply a graphic and compelling argument in favor of higher rates. In July the reports of the carriers which have so far been made public reveal that increased gross revenues were not reflected by comparable increases in net. In fact, if the figures of the first eleven roads to be made public are lumped together actual net operating income declined 6.2 per cent from the July 1936 figure. Gross in July this year showed an increase of 2.3 per cent. If the comparison is carried back to June, it is interesting to note that a 4.1 per cent gain in gross only resulted in 1.6 per cent improvement in net.

* * *

Railroad men and outside observers of their affairs agree that on the factual record higher rates are warranted. Carriers obviously must experience further substantial improvements in gross before they can better their positions, which is just another way of saying that recovery will be pretty nearly over before the railroads of the country start to make money.

* * *

Nothing that the stock market has done warrants a change in the do-nothing attitude displayed by both traders and investors. The steel group, which so clearly was the main factor in the July and early August rally, is under pressure. While it could hardly be said that offerings of the leading issues are heavy, it is just as significant to our way of looking at it that prices stay back with so little stock being turned over. It is impossible, from our standpoint, to offer readers anything other than the advices given here yesterday.

* * *

From a non-technical standpoint it did not appear that there was a factor powerful enough to move prices one way or the other. War news has been a constant possibility, but since it is unpredictable few observers have attempted to hook it up with their market forecasts. The decision of the railroad brotherhoods to strike early in September seems to have supplied the reason for the sharp selling movement, although it might easily be the shooting of the British diplomat in China. All told, the movement has all the earmarks of a selling climax, and it will be possible to see into the future more clearly once it is out of the way.

Graham Paige Boosts Prices

Detroit, Aug. 26 (INS)—The Graham-Paige Motors Corporation today was added to the growing list of automobile companies announcing 1938 model price boosts.

Executive Vice-President Robert C. Graham said yesterday prices on next year's models will range from $35 to $50 more than those on this year's cars.

MARKET Hurt by War NEWS

STOCK TICKER FALLS BEHIND

New York, Aug. 26—More disturbing war news from the Far East, coupled with adverse domestic developments, put the skids under today's stock market.

The ticker tape lagged a minute or so behind floor dealings for the first time in months at the height of the selling rush, which, however, later slackened. Extreme losses of fractions to four or more points were reduced here and there near the fourth hour.

Inspiring the slide, brokers said, was the shooting of the British ambassador near Shanghai; Japanese threats to include neutral shipping in the blocade of the China coast; possibility of a strike following breakdown of railway wage negotiations, and signs of waning confidence in a brisk business upturn this fall.

Commodities displayed rising tendencies. U. S. Government securities were lower and corporation bonds mixed.

PROMINENT STOCKS RETREAT

Prominent in the share retreat were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Sloss-Sheffield, National Steel, American Steel Foundries, American Rolling Mill, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore & Ohio, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodyear, Goodrich, J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Cerro De Pasco, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, Howe Sound, Crown Cork, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Phillips Petroleum, Shell Union Oil, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Zenith Radio and American Locomotive.

Preferred issues of West Penn Electric, reflecting reorganization plans of American Water Works involving the calling of these stocks and dissolution of the subsidiary, were given a runup at the start, but lost rising momentum later. American Water Works common was off about a point.

Helping retard the steels was the fear of steelmakers the Far Eastern hostilities may put a sizable crimp in sales to the Orient. Both China and Japan have been important steel customers.

RAIL REPORTS STUDIED

In addition to the labor stalemate, carrier stockholders noted that the first 25 railroads to report for July disclosed aggregate net operating income was down 13.8 per cent from the like 1936 month. Early estimates of last week's revenue freight loadings placed the total slightly under 770,000 cars. This would compare with 777,382 in the preceding week and 734,873 in the same period last year.

Analysts studied figures of the Federal Reserve authorities stressing a decline in installment sales by department stores over the past several months. July installment transactions in Boston, for instance, were 66 per cent under a year ago.

New Haven R. R. Shows Deficit For July

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 26 (AP)—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company reported today a deficit for July of $769,898 compared to a $506,675 deficit in July, 1936.

The road's income for the month, however, was $6,846,149, an increase of $395,298 over the July, 1936, gross revenues.

Freight revenue during the past month decreased $13,219 or 0.4 per cent but passenger revenue was up $311,396 or 14.9 per cent.

Operating, maintenance and transportation expenses all were higher than in July, 1936, the road reported, because of additional roadway maintenance, the application of cast steel side frames to cars, repairs to freight cars and locomotives and the increased volume of traffic handled.

The report showed a deficit for the seven months of the year of $2,871,283 compared to a $4,793,173 deficit for the corresponding period last year.

LOWER Rediscount RATES

DISTURBING TO HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Aug. 26—The more one thinks about this move of the Federal Reserve Bank to reduce their rediscount rates, the more doubtful it seems.

I am taking it for granted that the Federal Reserve System is just a branch of the government, as Mr. Eccles has said. This seems to be a reasonable assumption, inasmuch as the reserve board's policy is dictated by the government, and the chief assets of the system are the government's debt.

Therefore, when the Federal Reserve System reduced its rediscount rates it means that the government as a lender is reducing the rate of charge for its credit to nominal figures such as 1½ per cent in the South and West and 1 per cent in New York.

Looked at in this way, its credit may seem cheap, or, in other words, not good. At least, it can be said that in trying to expand loans it has to offer very low rates.

This policy is alleged to have two reasons or explanations. One reason is said to be that it will enable private banks to hold more government securities than they otherwise would do. The other reason is that it may stimulate business.

The first reason amounts to saying that the government as a lender by reducing its lending rate can help the government that is known as the Federal Reserve System, goes in for the easy money policy so that the member banks can borrow and buy the government's own bonds.

This is much like trying to pull oneself over a fence hoisting on one's own boot straps.

Moreover, it is well to remember that the show of strong credit that is made by the sale of government bonds at a low yield, is not only artificial, but is also offset by the low interest rate (rediscount rate) that the government gets as a lender.

As to stimulating business, the reasoning is, if possible, even less convincing.

In the first place, it amounts to saying that by leading a horse to water you can make him drink. The government as lender proposes to "make available" large masses of its credit at abnormally low rates. This is the quality supplied, but what about the demand for it? Will private banks be able to profit by it through loans to individual business men?

If so, it will certainly not be because of the large and easy supply. But more than that, government itself is trying to enact or actually enforcing restrictions and taxes which keep business from expanding and borrowing. It is making doubtful the value of the dollars which it seeks to lend.

If increased business loans were the real object, the surest and quickest way to get them would be to remove business uncertainties. Individuals will borrow freely when individual businesses are allowed to prosper as they can do only under individual initiative.

The plain fact is that the easy money policy puts the cart before the horse. This results in warped and disingenuous reasoning.

For example, it is now argued that these rediscount cuts are good because they will encourage a localization of borrowing and lending in each reserve district. But hitherto the talk has all been of "national thinking" and cooperation regardless of sections.

The government now argues that the rediscount rate must be brought into line with the general structure of rates "available in the money market." But it does not admit that the interest rates are determined by economic laws. In fact, the rates now available in the money market have been artificially manufactured by government policies such as the open market operations of the reserve banks, devaluation, and the gold and silver buying policies.

Why, then, not bring the money market rates up into line with the rediscount rates?

As long as "the easy money policy" prevails, inflation will menace our money markets.

Low Stock Volume Viewed

By GERALD M. LOEB
Noted Financial Analyst
Special to Boston Evening American

New York, Aug. 26—The average broker on the stock exchange, or the average owner of a listed stock, would almost without exception characterize the present lack of activity in the stock market as indicative of a depressed condition in Wall Street.

Certainly the brokers and their employes and the owners of real estate housing them, not only in downtown Manhattan but also all over the country where branch offices are located, and the telegraph and telephone companies and all the others who are more or less directly affected by the volume of trading or lack of it, are hoping that the current situation represents a depression, and a temporary one at that.

* * *

There are a great many others who, regardless of activity, feel that the present level of prices is not as high as it might be.

My own view is that, barring new legislation of a constructive sort, Wall street is not in a depression at all, but rather in a boom, certainly as regards volume of trading and possibly as regards the price level.

It has always seemed to me that, given prosperity for any important section of our population, this prosperity always spills over into the stock market. As far as I know, it always has, and undoubtedly it is doing so now. There are a great many indices of general business that are highly favorable and some of them are actually at boom-time levels. There is little possibility, in my mind, that these factors have not exerted their full effect on the volume of trading and probably on the price level as well, to the extent that the present machinery permits.

* * *

However, in the past few days market activity has averaged a fraction of what was seen in the past under similar conditions of general prosperity. It seems quite logical to me to inquire, if under present generally boom conditions the stock exchange volume averages under a million shares a day, why anyone should expect that when we run into the inevitable business recession the volume should run higher. Outside of panicky days, which are the exception rather than the rule, volume of trading has always been higher with good general business and lower with bad.

* * *

The price of stock exchange seats perhaps gives the most graphic representation of the situation. Everybody knows that they have not recovered with other indices of business. Thus, instead of this being a time of depression in Wall street, it might more truly be termed a boom time under the new regime of things.

As I see it, the current lack of activity in the markets is practically synonymous with a lack of liquidity, though some very intelligent observers do not admit that liquidity and activity have this relation. If this premise that this current lack of activity and liquidity is now fundamental and normal is correct, then a great many new questions arise as to the future values of the great majority of listed shares, and also as to the future cost of new financing. There are a great number of investment trusts in this country whose portfolios are published and show the ownership of large blocks of extremely inactive issues. These stocks, in my opinion, are just as unliquid as they are inactive. There are today also an increasing number of important investment counsel firms and their clients undoubtedly own in the aggregate very large blocks of these same inactive issues.

* * *

By the same token, do we need a reappraisal or a new yardstick for attempting to judge the reasonable market value of given earning power or well-defined prospects or good management or balance sheet strength or the effects of easy money, which also takes into consideration the loss of liquidity and, for that matter, the loss of collateral value, because the two go hand in hand?

In this connection, the higher margin requirements of the Federal Reserve Board are in my opinion a blessing in disguise to brokers and bankers generally, who might otherwise be competitively forced to loan money on the old-time basis against stocks which have not the old-time liquidity which was the basis for the safety of their loans.

* * *

In my opinion, the next time economists are talking of deflation, or, to use more popular phraseology, the next time a public clamor against the high cost of living impresses the administration more than the recent clamor of the debtor class and the have-nots, and furthermore, the next time that lower earnings and decreased dividends are a matter of current discussion, then we will begin to measure the real depression in Wall Street, and then we will begin to be able to intelligently revise some of the legislation that probably inadvertently will be found to have been one of the basic causes.

Soviet's "Wolf! Wolf!"

HYPOCRISY and FEAR are scrawled all over Soviet Prosecutor Vishinsky's statement, just made in Moscow, that hundreds of Russians were executed in 1932 by "Trotskyist enemies of the people."

This was during the great state-ordered famine of that year, when it is estimated that between THREE AND SEVEN MILLION peasants were deliberately starved to death in Stalin's effort to collectivize the farms.

Vishinsky, now making Trotsky the goat, denounces those who "SENTENCED PEOPLE TO DEATH FOR MISSING STALKS OF GRAIN IN THE CUTTING" and "THE PROSECUTOR WHO SENT TO TRIAL A COLLECTIVE FARM WOMAN WITH A LARGE FAMILY FOR STEALING FIVE POUNDS OF VEGETABLES."

This confession in itself is appalling in its inhumanity. It unveils the unbelievable ruthlessness of Communism.

It also unveils the PANIC, both physical and psychological, that is shaking the men who now control a twenty-year-old terror—THE LONGEST AND BLOODIEST IN THE ANNALS OF HUMAN HISTORY.

Putting all the past crimes of this frightful regime on Trotsky and Bukharin, as Prosecutor Vishinsky does, is a transparent attempt to "pass the buck" when it is too late.

Dr. Conant Talks Sense

WHY doesn't Harvard train young men for government jobs?

Thousands who admire the great Cambridge University have asked that question.

Now, in an address before San Francisco's Commonwealth Club, President Conant gives the nation the answer.

"We are not trying to train our students for governmental work," he explains, "because we do not believe we can place them afterward.

"General intellectual capacity seems NOT to be accepted as a primary requirement in public affairs."

Dr. Conant is undoubtedly right; recent history proves it. How many votes is still more interesting to most politicians than how much brains. Within the last five years tens of thousands have been added to city, State and Federal payrolls for no other reason than that POLITICAL DEBTS HAD TO BE PAID.

Today, with the biggest bureaucracy in the history of the world loaded on to the backs of the taxpayers, Dr. Conant's advice is highly important.

As he says, we must keep our Civil Service system. BUT WE MUST ALSO FORTIFY IT AGAINST SPOILSMEN AND AT THE SAME TIME PERMIT COMPETENT EMPLOYES TO RISE FROM ONE JOB TO BETTER ONES.

The Hibernians Say, 'No'

MASSACHUSETTS Hibernians, convening in New Bedford, adopted an important resolution.

"We oppose and deplore," said the delegates, "all attempts to cancel or reduce the war debts due the United States."

This worthy organization, whose patriotism and loyalty to America are generally respected, could not have addressed a more worthwhile message to the government in Washington.

The thirteen billion dollars that the European defaulters refuse to pay is the AMERICAN PEOPLE'S MONEY.

Every cent of the debts that is ever cancelled will be a cent that will come out of some American worker's pay envelope now and in the years to come.

Last June 15, the date for payment of an installment, Britain, France, Italy and lesser nations let it be known that nothing was forthcoming from them. The result was that American taxpayers had to find $205,338,754 to pay the bill.

The Hibernians are absolutely right; there can be no reduction or cancellation of the war debts—not so long as the American government has the slightest consideration for the people it represents.

Peabody Finds Proof

THERE'S truth in the old adage that we do not really appreciate a possession until we lose it; Peabody's experience provides proof.

Life there moved back fifty years Tuesday evening, when a switch explosion cut off the city's power supply.

In dark homes on darker streets the people, according to news dispatches, "almost ceased to live."

That is understandable when one realizes that practically every modern invention, from the kitchen range to the very necessary traffic light, is controlled and operated by electricity.

Fortunately, Peabody's enforced slumber lasted only a half-hour. Lights were then restored, and the city went back to normalcy.

What if the power supply were permanently disabled? What if all power supplies in New England were also permanently disabled?

There, indeed, is food for thought. It's speculation, of course. But not IDLE speculation—not after the stories we have read about aerial bombings in the Chinese-Japanese war.

A Job for Our Inventors

AN imitation-proof automobile registration number plate!

Here's a problem for the ingenious minds of Massachusetts to solve.

Our present green and white marker leaves much to be desired. There can be no doubt about that. It is too easily duplicated, as the plates used by the Newton patrolman's slayer proved.

These, according to police, showed that the underworld is stealing markers, sawing between the numbers and then welding the pieces. When given a coat of paint, the "composite" plates appear authentic. But, naturally, THERE IS NO RECORD OF THEM IN POLICE FILES.

We live in an age of marvels. We talk around the world without wires. We take pictures in Boston and send them by radio to Paris and London. And these are only two of the wondrous things we do.

Certainly the making of an imitation-proof number plate should not stump us.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 26—With the legitimate theater having to fight every inch of the way for existence, a tautness has developed between the producers and critics that may end in open revolt. The producers say they have a legal right to bar destructive critics, and may do it.

Alexander Woollcott and Percy Hammond were excluded legally for what producers said was constant fault-finding. Even Brock Pemberton, who used to be a dramatic editor, is outspoken in his belief that some of the critics have gone too far—and should be barred if the producers feel like barring them.

Perhaps the greatest offender from the showman's standpoint is George Jean Nathan, who seldom turns in a favorable report. It is the plaint of many producers that many shows are knocked in the head at premieres before they have a chance to jell.

However, the critics have their side and are standing pat. They are agreed that any censorship over their critiques will not only be opposed by newspaper editors but will end the usefulness of reviewing. There may be some interesting show-downs the coming season.

Not all the biggities—rich and powerful—eat at the elaborate restaurants with silken entrance ropes and trained European servitors. Owen D. Young lunches regularly on Lexington avenue. Postmaster Farley eats—and very lightly—at a similar place on 8th avenue.

Mrs. Helen Gould Shepherd dines frequently at Alice Foote MacDougall's and Amelia Earhart and her husband often occupied a table at one of the avenue places. Kate Smith is a regular diner at Lebus and John D. Rockefeller now and then drops into Susan Palmer's.

In the old Park Row days Charles G. Dana lunched on a bowl of milk with crackers at a 25 cent luncheon place on Park Row.

Will Rogers was often a guest at a Chili Villa, as were Irvin Cobb and Joe Cook.

I was assigned one time as a reporter to watch for Hetty Green at a downtown restaurant. She came in one day, bringing her lunch in a paper bag and ordering a cup of coffee.

I was near enough to see she left a nickel tip. My two column story about it was shaved to a stick.

Central Park at sundown suggests Rotterdam going from work so astonishingly has the bicycle craze been revived. Stage folk, held in town by engagements, are among the pedal enthusiasts. Harlem, due to its proximity to the park, turns out a large cycling parade.

Incidentally, someone tells me Joe Jackson, the stage tramp cyclist, gets his exercise and relaxation on a bicycle, but minus his makeup no one recognizes him in public. Colonel Lindbergh and his wife are also doing much bicycling in England.

One of New York's most self-effacing tycoons is Messmore Kendall, so frequently mentioned as the author's friend and adviser in Arnold Bennett's journals. As a young lawyer out of Michigan, he organized the Braden Copper Company and made a fortune.

He has the most notable collection of Washingtonia outside Smithsonian Institution and is president of the Sons of the American Revolution.

He lives in a colonial home, a Washington landmark at Dobbs Ferry in the summer, and in a Grand Central sized apartment over the Capitol Theater, which he built and owns, in winter. He also has a villa at Palm Beach.

Thingumbobs: Bud Fisher was the first comic strip artist to make $50,000 a year . . . Maxwell Anderson, highbrow playwright, enjoys vaudeville juggling and balancing acts . . . Clare Booth is writing a new play in Hawaii . . . Walter Huston is to be Mr. Tutt when the dramatization of Arthur Train's character is brought to the stage . . . Booth Tarkington's favorite type of dog is the French poodle.

I have a letter from a fraidy cat smoker in San Francisco that may interest the cigarette makers in directing radio programs. He was for years a contented puffer. Then began listening to air blurbs about various brands of cigarettes and of a sudden became "throat conscious."

The medical documents stressing smoking only this brand or that so confused him that in panic he quit smoking altogether.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

It's one of those strange cases. You've read of them in the papers . . . wondered if they could be true . . . tried to think what you'd do, if YOU were the JUDGE.

A man, in his wild youth, commits a crime . . . eludes the police . . . disappears. For years nothing is heard of him.

Suddenly, at some point far distant from the scene of the crime, a face is glimpsed in a crowd. Memory stirs . . . leaps to amazed recognition. THE LOST MAN ISN'T DEAD!

He's alive — and amazingly changed. But heaven only knows what struggles he has put his past behind him, reformed his nature, become a useful and beloved member of the community.

BUT THERE'S THAT OLD CHARGE, STILL STANDING . . . WHAT ABOUT THAT? REGARDLESS OF HIS FINE RECORD, THE LAW SAYS HE MUST BE EXTRADITED, MADE TO STAND TRIAL . . . SENT TO PRISON.

Is that just? Is it sensible or civilized?

A "MIRACLE MAN"

Recently, you may have read about a mysterious recluse—John Montague, "miracle man of the golf course."

For years, Hollywood has wondered about John Montague—cast envious and admiring eyes on his golf score card. Not only was he a wizard on the green—but the best of good fellows to boot.

Prominent screen stars—Guy Kibbee, Oliver Hardy, Bing Crosby, Norman McLeod, scores of others, all were proud to call him friend. In a city of bizarre and often lawless pranks, Montague was distinguished for his high standards.

Then, out of the past—incongruous and incredible—rose a rumor which speedily hardened into tragic fact—JOHN MONTAGUE WAS, IN REALITY, LAVERNA MOORE WHO, AS A BOY, HAD BEEN INVOLVED WITH THREE OTHERS IN A $700 HOLDUP IN JAY, NEW YORK.

REFORMED HIMSELF

Hollywood, the unshockable, is for once profoundly moved. Countless friends have rallied to Montague's aid.

"STOP AND THINK!" pleads Attorney Jerry Geisler.

"Laverne Moore of New York is as dead as though he rested in a tomb. In his place has arisen a new man with a new soul. That man is John Montague. If you send him back to New York it will mean that a useful citizen is dead.

"He has reformed himself against odds that must have been tremendous—odds that he did not find insurmountable. WHEREIN WOULD IT BENEFIT SOCIETY TO HAVE HIM BRANDED AS A FELON THE REST OF HIS DAYS?"

"WHEREIN WILL IT BENEFIT SOCIETY?"—there's a question which rests upon every taxpayer, as well as upon the authorities. Many will say that John Montague's punishment, at this late date, will serve as a grim deterrent for potential lawbreakers.

But others will argue that such punishment will arouse more contempt than respect for the law.

Is it not the aim of justice to REFORM?

Has this man not reformed himself as completely as any judge or jail could do? Is he not now a valuable asset to society?

Will not further punishment turn him into a needless liability . . . burden the taxpayers with unnecessary expense . . . give all criminals a chance to despise the court's "cruelty?"

"AN EYE FOR AN EYE"—is that still civilization's only answer to the man who has erred?

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

The world at large is somewhat hypocritical in its attitude toward Japan.

I hold no brief for Japanese imperialism, but it will be forcibly demonstrated to any one who has the time and inclination to give even a hasty glance over history that what Japan is doing to China is precisely what the major powers of the world have done to one another; moreover, they have attained their present prestige by doing it to lesser nations.

England, which has an empire that stretches around the world, got nearly everything she has—and ever had—by INVASION and CONQUEST.

Her latest "take-over" at the point of the sword was her South African possessions. She put up a howl against Mussolini not because she was opposed to his conquest of Ethiopia but because it threatened what she had already chewed up in Africa.

France carved a great slice out of Africa with the sword.

Alsace-Lorraine has been conquered and re-conquered over and over by France and Germany.

Poland has been in the past coldly "partitioned" among the Continental powers, and today both Germany and Russia are licking their chops in anticipation of another conquest.

Napoleon ravished the whole of Europe not so long ago.

The United States is what it is today because we took most of our territory from the Indians, not to speak of what we "appropriated" from Mexico after the Mexican war.

China herself once conquered, under the Khans, all of Asia. Nearly all her vast area today has been won by the sword. She has gobbled up whole nations as if they were chop-suey.

Since the dawn of time empires and republics have waxed and waned by either conquering or being conquered.

Of course no nation will ever admit that its aim is conquest. They have all said since Alexander's and Caesar's time that they bring "the blessings of civilization to barbarians," that they pummel a people to near-extinction "for their own good."

Each nation, each race, believes itself to be the superior race. Maybe Japan can make a better Asia—for, as Francis Herbert Bradley said:

"Hypocrisy is sometimes the beginning of virtue."

Fighting Tommy Farr

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

In this country, we do not hear much of Wales or Welshmen, except when they get trapped in coal mines or sing at the Eisteddfod festival.

Tommy Farr, big, bumptious, towheaded Welsh lad, fighting Joe Louis for the world championship, is carrying on from where David Lloyd George left off, in letting the world know about Wales. This will be our first international championship match since 1932, when Max Schmeling was defeated by Jack Sharkey.

In the past 25 years there has been a rather sad parade of British heavyweights. Farr, the empire champion, master of Max Baer in a 12-round fight, looks better than most of them, is strong, young and confident, and might stack up surprisingly well against the Brown Bomber, some fight officials think.

But whatever happens, he chants a new saga of Welsh fighting prowess. Coal miners over there fight far into the night just for the love of scrapping, says the young challenger. Since no Welshman ever quits, they finally sag down like a wet string, still whamming away. The officials then dig a hole for each fighter, 18 inches apart, and plant them up to their waists like a post in a post-hole.

Thus securely placed, they can maul each other at half arms length until one or the other is unconscious. That's how the Welsh love to fight.

WADES RIGHT IN

Finishing a nine-hour shift in the coal pit, a miner may have to gallop over a mountain range at night to find a suitable adversary, but off he goes, and wades right in. All in the amateur spirit.

Another thing, being such rootin', tootin' miners, the Welsh lads do a lot of casual and free-hand blasting, so they get used to carrying rock blasts, compared with which the piston drive of Joe Louis' left would be just the kick of a katydid.

AN AROUSED LAND

From John L. Sullivan, Irish scrappers have been effective publicizers of Celtic belligerency. Their rise came along with the development of Irish nationalism, which finally won autonomy for South Ireland. Tommy Farr, first Welsh contender for the world championship, moves into the spotlight against a similar background.

Within the last few years Wales has developed a strong and militant nationalist movement. It boiled up dramatically last February, when three Welshmen were tried in London for burning a British munitions storehouse in Wales.

Three nationally known professors, indignant because they thought Britain endangered their peace, had set the fire. With the trial, there was a startling blow-off in Wales and the arsonists got only nine months. And since then, the nationalist campaign has been warming up daily.

INTEREST LAGS

Any nation, feeling its oats, likes to dramatize a bit of national chauvinism in some world-conquering individual. The German overlords eagerly seized on Max Schmeling when it was disclosed he was not the push-over he was supposed to be. We were like that in the nineties, when we were warming up for our first imperial outreach in the days of William McKinley's "manifest destiny."

Right now, I have an idea there is precious little jingo stuff in either Great Britain or America. We have become keenly aware that brains as well as militancy are important for national survival.

We want no part in any fight that isn't distinctly our own, for our own good reasons. Our destiny abroad isn't quite so manifest as we once thought it was. Our territorial possessions aren't panning out. If, on the long chance, the British did win the international prizefighting championship, I don't think there would be any flags at half-mast over here.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Predictions made during the last campaign that whoever was elected would have a rocky road to travel are coming true and with a rapidity that must be making a lot of heads swim.

The discovery that his grip on Congress is slipping is only one of the President's worries. John L. Lewis, CIO head, whose United Mine Workers contributed one-half million dollars to the Democratic campaign fund last year, is on the warpath with his knife out for the Roosevelt scalp.

Lewis charges that the failure of Congress to pass the wage and hours bill "SHOWS THAT DEMOCRATIC LEADERSHIP IS UNABLE TO CARRY OUT" ITS 1936 CAMPAIGN PLEDGES. The Democratic leadership is President Roosevelt. Labor leaders relied upon him to crack the whip over Congress and put through the program they thought they were buying with their big donation to his campaign chest.

He hasn't been able to deliver to their satisfaction.

So far as the success of Lewis' CIO program is concerned, his attack on the President was foolish and ill-advised. No matter if he felt his denunciation of "Democratic leadership" fully justified, he has nothing to gain by an open break with the President, while he does have much to lose.

Lewis will need a lot more help from this administration but he isn't going to get it with a club.

The most significant part of the Lewis statement is his demand that the Democratic party "either RESTORE SUFFICIENT PARTY DISCIPLINE TO PERMIT GOVERNMENT TO FUNCTION UNDER THEIR GUIDANCE, or confess that their party is not the vehicle by which the people of the country may progress to a solution of their pressing social problems."

That "discipline" demand sounds like an echo from overseas where people are disciplined and regimented by dictatorships. And it shows up Lewis' idea of what constitutes democracy.

Over in Germany, they have "sufficient party discipline to permit government to function under the guidance" of the dominant party. How this "party discipline" operates on labor is shown by the speech of Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi boss of the labor front, to workers at Cologne.

Warning them that they cannot organize or strike or even ask for wage increases, he said:

"There is only one labor organization in this country and that is the (Nazi) LABOR FRONT.

"There is only ONE PROGRAM which determines the marching order for the people and THAT IS HITLER'S PROGRAM. PRIVATE LIFE NO LONGER EXISTS IN GERMANY.

"Since Adolph Hitler has come to power the only private life which remains to you is when you are asleep at night. Beyond this there is none.

"Anyone who does not keep pace with us will be kicked in the heels until he does."

No one man is going to determine the marching order for all the American people.

It appears from the new tax avoidance bill that Congress has made up its mind to do away with personal holding companies. They are to be taxed out of existence. In addition to all other taxes, there is levied a surtax of 65 per cent upon the first $2000 of their undistributed net income and 75 per cent upon the balance.

Instead of being tax sanctuaries, personal holding companies now become tax traps.

While Congress was plugging some of the loopholes in the tax laws, it did nothing about the biggest loophole of all. That is tax exemption on government bonds—federal, state and local.

While the taxspenders are spending more than they are taking in, they don't want this loophole plugged because it would make borrowing more difficult and boost interest rates.

A young clergyman from Montana, named United States minister to Lithuania, thinks the Golden Rule is "a fair enough diplomatic policy."

It should be. But there is a great difference between what should be and what is on this earth.

The Japanese don't OWN the Whangpoo River in China, so when they asked Admiral Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the American Asiatic fleet, to give them advance notice before he moved any of his ships on that stream after dark he told them American vessels would navigate the river whenever and as he pleased without notice to anybody.

While the Chinese and Japanese were blazing away at one another along the river, a shell struck the flagship of the American fleet, killing one sailor and wounding 18 more.

It won't take many more incidents of this kind before we are up to our necks in the fight.

If Japan and China want to keep their war a private affair, they will have to be more careful about where their shells land. The United States and Great Britain are not in the habit of being dictated to by any foreign power. Their warships are in Chinese waters for the protection of their citizens who are lawfully in China.

While Japan might not hesitate to affront one nation, she surely doesn't want to anger the United States, England and France all at once.
